Father and Two Sisters of Slain Girl, Who Advance New Theory for Murder

Mary Staula. Dominic Staula. Jennie Staula.

"I will tell my father on you when he comes home." Mary Staula declares that her slain sister Louise invariably made this threat when annoyed by anyone. She believes that fear of her father because of such a threat led to the Mother Brook tragedy.

LITTLE GIRL SLAIN FROM FEAR

Sister of Louise Staula Advances Theory That May Aid in Capture of Murderer—Threat to "Tell Father" May Have Prompted Crime.

Fear of vengeance from her father, it is believed, was the impelling motive in the brutal murder of pretty Louise Staula when she went flower gathering in the meadows near her Dedham home on Monday evening.

This theory of the remarkable crime was advanced to-day by Miss Mary Staula, the oldest sister of the dead girl. To a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN Miss Staula said:

"I believe the person who killed my sister Louise feared that she would tell my father that she had been annoyed by him. Louise would always say, when anyone plagued her or did anything else that hurt her feelings, 'I will tell my father on you when he comes home.' If a man followed her or frightened her in the meadows on Monday that would have been the first thing that would have come to her mind. In order to silence her, the fiend beat her to death with stones."

POLICE SEEK WITNESS.

While Police Chief Drugan declared to-day that he had no suspect in view he and officers detailed from the State department renewed their investigation of the baffling case with increased determination to run to earth the guilty culprit.

Every person who could possibly throw any light on the movements of the little girl on the evening of the tragedy and who might give any information leading to the capture of her assailant are being questioned. In the course of this work police officers to-day went to the room occupied by Francesco Yeage, familiarly known as "Charlie Chick," and took away some of his clothing, a pair of shoes and a bed sheet. On the bed clothing were found what appeared to be four blood spots.

When the police went to the house which Yeage lived they learned that he had not been at home during the night. It was thought that he might have gone to the home of a woman friend in Boston and was expected to return this afternoon when he will be questioned in connection with the case.

YEAGE DECLARES INNOCENCE.

When seen last evening in Forest Hills Yeage declared that he knew absolutely nothing that would aid the police in the discovery of the little girl's murderer, and said that a grave injustice had been done him in bringing his name into the case.

"I went to Mr. Staula," said Yeage, "and told him that I had heard that someone had said that I had attacked Louise. I told him that I never harmed her, and he said that he knew that I wouldn't hurt the baby."

Dominic Staula, father of the murdered girl, was accompanied to police headquarters early to-day by Inspector Maurice Brown of the local police, where he was questioned at length by Chief Drugan. The police chief, when seen by a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN, was asked:

"Is there an arrest near in the murder, chief?"

"I do not think an arrest will be made at present," was the chief's reply.

MYSTERY DEEPENS IN CASE.

"Do you suspect anyone of the crime?"

"I don't suspect anyone any more than I would the first person I met in the street. The case seems to be getting more and more like that of Annie Mullins. It is a deep mystery."

Dominic Lolario, a resident of Dedham, told the police to-day that he saw a man and a little girl in the meadow about 5:18 o'clock on the evening of the tragedy. Lolario said that on that evening he was on a train out of Boston to Dedham and sat on the rear seat on the right hand side of the last car and looked out across the

JUDGE RULES THAW MUST PROVE SANITY

YOUNG MILLIONAIRE'S FIGHT FOR FREEDOM FROM ASYLUM GIVEN BLOW BY COURT.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 14.—Harry K. Thaw's fight for freedom from Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane began in earnest to-day before Justice Morschauser in the Supreme Court.

Basing their fight on the question of validity of commitment, drawn by Justice Dowling, Thaw's lawyers argued at length. They hoped to show that Stanford White's slayer had been illegally confined in Matteawan because the verdict of the jury characterized him of unsound mind only at the time of the shooting, while the sole record of his mental condition found in the lunacy proceedings declared him of sound mind.

Jerome Martials Forces.

District Attorney Jerome, his chief aid, Frank Garvan, Assistant District Attorney Johnstone and his chief medical advisers, Drs. Carlos N. McDonald and Austin Flint, came to Poughkeepsie on an early train. Governor Hughes was also a passenger. The District Attorney and the Governor exchanged greetings on the way up. Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent at Matteawan State Asylum, who flatly declares that Thaw is insane and a menace to the community, joined the experts for Jerome.

Thaw's counsel were ready with but two witnesses, Dr. Francis McGuire, the Tombs physician, and Dr. John P. Wilson, a local alienist, who has been visiting Thaw in the local jail.

The spacious court room filled up rapidly, several score of women finding places before the doors were closed.

Roger O'Mara talked with Thaw before the proceedings opened. Thaw was led in shortly after 11 o'clock. He was forced through the crowd in the corridor by Under Sheriff Townsend and walked to a seat within a few feet of Jerome.

Graham Makes Plea.

The women spectators exhibited the greatest curiosity to see the millionaire prisoner. One aged woman in the body of the court room levelled a pair of field glasses at Thaw, and with reluctance passed them to her neighbor.

Thaw showed the first signs of nervousness when Jerome came into the room. He stiffened in his seat and stared at Jerome with a look of hatred. For several minutes he remained in this position, and only when Graham began his argument did he take his gaze from the District Attorney of New York County.

"I desire to make at this time a motion for the discharge of Harry Thaw on the ground that Justice Dowling's commitment was unconstitutional," Graham began.

"Insane Only at Shooting."

"The defendant should have had an opportunity to be heard on the subject of his mental condition," he continued.

"He should have had a hearing before a sheriff's jury or a lunacy commission. Justice Dowling assumed to determine the defendant's condition on evidence adduced on the trial of indictment for homicide.

"The jury found that he was insane on June 25, 1906. A lunacy commission declared him sane on April 4, 1907. Therefore, at the time of the second trial he was presumed to be sane.

"There was no evidence of his mental condition the day Justice Dowling committed him, and we ask now for his discharge."

"Do you admit that he was insane?" asked Justice Morschauser.

"Only at the time of the shooting," responded Graham.

Must Prove Thaw Sane.

"The burden of proof to show he is sane to-day rests on you," declared the Court.

"You must show the law under which he was committed was unconstitutional," he continued.

Graham offered several authorities to prove the law was unconstitutional, but Justice Morschauser declared that he differed with him.

"There are two questions here: Is the defendant sane, and is the law a sound one? You must determine which one of these you will base your application for the writ of habeas corpus upon," said the Court.

Jerome offered to thrash out the question of the validity of the law with the provision that he be allowed to argue an appeal in higher courts in the event of the decision going against him.

Defence Upset.

"Do we have to prove that our client is sane?" asked Graham.

"I hold that the burden of proof will be on you," responded the Court.

Graham then pleaded for an adjournment, saying that they had been taken by surprise at the court's ruling. Justice Morschauser again ruled against him.

"You must go on now. I will sit from 9 to 12:30, 1:30 to 6 and from 7 to 10 p. m.," said Justice Morschauser.

"We are hardy people and the long sessions will be no hardships to us," said Jerome.

"Well, if you are going up to the Adirondacks to sum up before Commissioner Hand, you will be able to rest up," offered the Court.

All but Thaw joined in the laugh that followed this remark.

"We will take up the question of Harry K. Thaw's present mental condition," said Graham, after a conference with the client.

Jerome Admits Report.

Few words were spent in opening the case. Graham offered the order of Justice Fitzgerald creating the lunacy commission, the report of the commission and the finding of the jury in the second as evidence. Jerome objected to the documents, but after a short argument agreed to allow them in evidence.

Dr. Frank A. McGuire was called as the first witness.

"I first saw Thaw in the city prison the day after the shooting of Stanford White," the Tombs' physician testified.

The court interrupted the testimony to caution Lawyer Graham to get down to facts.

"Don't waste time. It is not material

RED SOX GAME WITH DETROIT IS CALLED OFF

No chance for the Tigers to put over another win to-day, as the game at the Huntington avenue grounds was called off at the noon hour on account of the determination of J. Pluvius to do a little pelting with his raindrops.

There would have been more disappointment over the postponement by the Hub fans had the Red Sox won one of the games already played with the Tigers, but the lay off may be just the thing needed to put the team in good shape to go after the Jennings crew to-morrow.

Red Sox Listen to Lecture.

The wet weather also cut out the morning practice of the Red Sox, and they took some light exercise with the cards and listened to a few well chosen words of advice from Manager Jim McGuire. The old chieftain had seen the flaws committed in the two games with the Tigers, and had a good opportunity to speak of the evils which will not be in evidence in the future.

The players spent the afternoon in various ways, the studious ones staying around the quarters pulling away at a good book or writing to the home folks while the show houses attracted others.

The Tigers hung around the Copley Square Hotel feeling in high spirits and Jennings failed to see any humor in the announcement that there would be no game.

While his men were in the winning mood he was anxious to have the game go on, as any break might spoil the combination of taking so many contests he had counted on in the first Eastern invasion.

There were several battles on the billiard tables in which "Wild Bill" Donovan endeavored to shade the brilliancy of Germany Schaefer.

The manager told his men to slick up after supper, as they had been invited to the Park Theatre as the guests of Harry Davis, and the Tigers were glad to have something to detract from the monotony of the dismal day.

WOMAN SAVES EIGHT GIRLS IN THEATRE FIRE

PREVENTS TINY ACTRESSES FROM DASHING INTO FLAMES IN GROVELAND HALL.

HAVERHILL, May 14.—But for the coolness and heroism of Mrs. Hattie A. Sargent, the citizens of the town of Groveland, across the river, would to-day be mourning the terrible death by burning of eight little girls who were taking part in a production of "An Open Secret" at Memorial Hall last night and were cut off by flames when a kerosene lamp set fire to the inflammable scenery. An account of the affair was received her this afternoon.

Mrs. Sargent, who was directing the show, forcibly prevented the tiny actresses from dashing on to the blazing stage, though they were penned behind the fire in a dressing room without doors into the street, and coolly awaited an opportunity to march them around the flames by an indirect passage.

A wild stampede occurred among the 200 spectators, most of them relatives and friends of the performers, and though none was badly hurt children were trampled, several men were cut and burned, and one boy was injured by leaping from the second-story window.

Benefit of Fire Sufferers.

The performance was given for the benefit of the Chelsea fire sufferers, and a terrible repetition of the Boyerstown, Pa., theatre holocaust was narrowly averted.

Just as the curtain was being raised for the second act a large kerosene lamp was overturned on the stage, and the flimsy scenery was quickly ablaze. Men shouted "Fire!" women and children shrieked, and the mad rush for the doors and windows ensued.

In the dressing room off the stage were the little girls, in charge of Mrs. Sargent, awaiting their entry. They knew there was no way to escape to the outer air, and the little ones started to rush toward the burning scenery. Mrs. Sargent, though sighting death, knew there was no chance by the stage exit. She blocked their way in person, ordered the girl to pack their clothes, and formed them in line.

Pandemonium in Auditorium.

Fortunately at this time the scenery burned away from the imprisoned children, and in a favorable moment the woman led their rush for safety and none were injured.

In the meantime pandemonium reigned in the auditorium. Hearing the shouts of "Fire!" and seeing the flames through the window, while he was sitting in his home next door, Percy Morgan, who lives next to the hall, dashed across Elm Park to the engine house. He was joined by several young men on the street, and they dragged the chemical apparatus to the hall, after forcing the door.

While they were doing this four Grand Army men on the floor below rushed up to the hall and on the stage and fought the flames with their bare hands and beat it out with chairs and other furniture. By the time the men arrived with hand grenades and chemical tanks they had the flames under control, and the damage to the theatre was not large.

Veterans Fight Flames.

The veterans who subdued the flames and probably saved many lives, were Dr. Louis A. Woodbury, Charles H. Cannett, Samuel H. Downes and Albert H. Hardy. Their hands were quite badly burned.

Clifton Noyes, George Colby, Policeman John Kelley and Robert Foote were slightly injured in fighting the flames, as well as a boy, whose name could not be learned, who jumped out of the window.

GOV. GUILD WELCOMED TO NAHANT

School Children Greet Him as He Arrives at His Summer Home.

Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., vetoing the orders of his nurse, risked the somewhat inclement weather to-day and made the trip from Cambridge to his Summer home in Nahant in an automobile.

The Governor reached Nahant at 11:30 o'clock, and the big machine pulled up in front of the schoolhouse where he was greeted with the allclaim of the school children, who had been preparing to welcome him.

The Governor was feeling in first rate spirits and made one of his characteristic happy speeches to the school children. He was then driven to his home on Main street.

Later, the school children trouped to the residence of the Governor with bouquets of flowers. The Governor was accompanied by Mrs. Guild. They had spent the night at the home of E. A. Grozier in Cambridge.

POLICE AGAIN CONFER ABOUT MULLINS CASE

Have New Information Regarding Passenger Who Was on Car with Suspect.

Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley and Inspector Neilon of Cambridge, with Inspector Hooley of Arlington, met to-day at Cambridge police headquarters in close conference over the Annie Mullins murder case. It is known that the inspectors were possessed of new and valuable information regarding the passenger who rode with Conductor John H. Shea the night of the murder, and who remarked on the peculiar manner in which a suspect in the case alighted from the car.

The inspectors feel that if this witness can be found and if he is able to corroborate Conductor Shea's description of the suspect, a very valuable link in the evidence will have been woven.

After a long and earnest conference at headquarters the three inspectors took a car for Arlington, where, it is thought, the witness who is now being sought, lives.

GOVERNOR GOING TO SUMMER HOME TO-DAY

Governor Guild plans to go to his Summer home at Nahant to-day if the weather is fair. In case of rain he will wait until later in the week.

Yesterday he took an automobile ride to Weston and back and felt much refreshed. He received a number of callers during the day, including several children who brought him wild flowers.

CONSERVE RESOURCES TO SAVE THE NATION

—James J. Hill.

RAILROAD MAGNATE SOUNDS WARNING NOTE IN ADDRESS TO GOVERNORS.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—James J. Hill, the railroad wizard of the Northwest, was the principal speaker at the second day's session of the Governor's conference at the White House, devoted to the subject of land resources. He discussed "The Natural Wealth of the Land and Its Conservation," and the President, Cabinet members, Governors and Senators in attendance listened to his theories and conclusions with the greatest interest.

Mr. Hill Said in Part:

"By the fixed rate of increase in the past, we must count upon a population of over 200,000,000 in the United States in the year 1950.

"We are approaching the point where all our wheat product will be needed for our own uses, and we shall cease to be an exporter of grain. There is still some room in Canada, but it will soon be filled. The relief will be but temporary. Our own people, whose mineral resources will by that time have greatly diminished, must find themselves thrown back upon the soil for a living. If continued abuse of the land should mark the next fifty years as it has the last, what must be our outlook?

New Era of Prosperity.

"We should not be here to-day were it not that the principle of a conservation of national resources as the foremost and controlling policy of the United States henceforth is coming to be seen by many, and must be heartily accepted by all, as the first condition not only of continued material prosperity, but also of the perpetuation of free institutions and a government by the people. The work now being done by the Department of Agriculture and the agricultural colleges of the various States furnishes a broad and intelligent foundation upon which to build up a new era of national progress and prosperity. It calls for a wise, generous and continuing policy on the part of both Federal and State governments.

Need Missionary Work.

"If this patriotic gospel is to make headway, it must be by just such organized missionary work as is to-day begun. It cannot go on and conquer if imposed from without. It must come to represent the fixed idea of the people's minds, their determination and their hope. It cannot be incorporated in our practical life by the dictum of any individual or any officer of nation or State in his official capacity.

"It needs the co-operation of all influences, the help of every voice, the commendation of nation and State that has been the strength and inspiration of every worthy work on American soil for 120 years. We return, for our gathering in council and for our plan of action for the future, to the model given us by the fathers. State and nation are represented here, without jealousy or any ambition of superiority on either side, to apply to the consideration of our future, such co-operation as that out of which this nation was born and by which it has won to worthy manhood."

"Soil Waste," by Professor T. C. Chamberlain of the University of Chicago, and "Forest Conservation," by R. A. Long, president of the Long Bell Lumber Company of Kansas City, completed the morning program.

Banquet for Delegates.

The visiting Governors and scientists are apparently having the time of their lives. The weather has thus far been ideal, and there has been "something doing" for their entertainment every minute of their waking hours since their arrival. Last night the Washington Board of Trade tendered the delegates a banquet at the New Willard, and among the distinguished personages present were the Vice-President, Speaker Cannon, John Mitchell, William J. Bryan and twenty-seven Governors. All the speakers paid glowing tributes to President Roosevelt for the patriotic motives which actuated him in calling the conference, but some of the orators took mild issue with the executive on his ideas of Federal power centralization.

HARRY THAW MUST PROVE HIS SANITY

whether you saw him in Cell No. 220 or any other one," ruled Justice Morschauser.

Q.—Did you see Thaw daily? A.—Yes. I went to his cell on my regular visits. I seldom prescribed for him because he was a homeopath.

Tells of Life in Tombs.

Q.—Did you talk with him? A.—Yes. He asked me if I had ever read "Wilson's History of the American People" on one occasion and often talked of literature. He was very much interested in the case of a prisoner who was later declared to be a paranoiac.

Q.—Were you asked to observe Thaw? A.—Yes, by the District Attorney.

Q.—What was his appearance? A.—He was receptive and always knew what was going on about him.

Q.—Did he ever exhibit any signs of emotion? A.—Yes, in September, 1906, when Dr. Bingamon and his wife were at his cell, he placed newspapers between the bars. He asked me if I objected to the papers. I did. "Well, it wouldn't look good for the institution if I should die of pneumonia, which I feel sure I will contract," Thaw said to me.

"Always Rational."

Q.—What opinion did you have of the question of his mental condition? A.—I always believed him to be rational.

This ended Dr. McGuire's direct examination.

Q. (by Jerome)—What was the rest of the conversation you had with Thaw about the pneumonia? A.—That is all I remember.

Q.—Did he say something about persons being desirous of having him exposed that he might contract pneumonia and die, and thus save prominent men from exposure through the trial? A.—I did not hear that.

Q.—Did you hear Dr. Bingamon testify to that effect? (Graham objected, and after a wrangle the question was withdrawn.)

Dr. McGuire, under the district attorney's questions, testified that daily reports from the keepers and attendants in the Tombs entered into his consideration of Thaw's mental condition.

"Poison in Prison Food."

Q.—Did you ever hear that Thaw had complained of poison being placed in his food? (Again Thaw's counsel objected. A long argument followed. The question was allowed.) A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you hear from the keepers that Thaw was fearful of assassination by shooting through the bars of his cell. (Graham renewed his objection and again the court decided against him.) A.—He did make that complaint.

With these two admissions Jerome declared that he was through with Dr. McGuire.

An adjournment was then taken.

HEARINGS ON CHELSEA ARSON CASES BEGIN

Forty-Five Witnesses Await Call Before Judge Bosson at Inpuiry.

With forty-five witnesses excluded from the courtroom and waiting to testify, fifteen of them for the government and thirty for the defendants, the hearing of the cases of Jacob Lewvitsky and Abraham Wolnitz, who are charged with arson in setting fire to Lewvitsky's rag shop in Chelsea and thereby starting the recent conflagration in that city, is in progress this afternoon before Judge Bosson in the Chelsea Police Court.

There was a large crowd of spectators on hand when court opened. Half of them were unable to gain admittance. The attorneys had a conference and decided to keep all the witnesses outside the court until their turn came to testify.

Three witnesses had ben examined when court took a recess for lunch at 1 P. M. Andrew W. Learmouth, a Chelsea fireman, who discovered the blaze in Lewvitsky's rag shop, said the fire was all inside the building when he made the discovery and that all the doors and windows were closed.

The other witnesses sworn were Alfred Maggi, civil engineer, and Samuel L. Sincerson of No. 148 Elm street, Chelsea.

SOCIALISTS PUT BAN ON IMMIGRANTS

CHICAGO, May 14.—The advocates of restricted immigration won their fight in the "Socialist national convention to-day when they succeeded in having adopted the resolution prepared by the National Executive Committee, which declares that "restriction of immigration is justifiable only in cases where contract laborers are being imported, or where the immigrants are deficient mentally and not sufficiently intelligent to understand the principles of social philosophy."

The early hours of to-day's session were devoted to completing the resolutions and to discussing platform suggestions. It is expected that nominations will be made to-day, and that the platform will be drafted. Final adjournment will come not later than Saturday night.

FINDS LOST RELATIVES.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 14.—Through Mayor Haussling of Newark, Mrs. William McRae of that city has heard from relatives in this city from whom she became separated twenty-six years ago. Mrs. McRae has sought her relatives for years.

SENATE KILLS BILL TO HELP WAGE EARNER

With representatives of the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, looking on, the Senate of Massachusetts has once more plunged the knife into a measure asked for by labor with almost one voice and already favorably acted upon by the House of Representatives.

The bill was one to "provide for public hearings upon certain matters relating to public service corporations and their employes."

The question was on ordering it to a third reading. The vote:

YES—Senators Butler, Halley, Linehan, Mahoney, McGettrick, Mitchell, Monahan, Vahey (Democrats), Dickinson, Hibbard, Norcross, Richmond, Salter, Sowle, Turner, Wheatley (Republicans) —16.

NO—Abbott, Bell, Cowee, Dean, Faxon, Fisk, Galland, Garfield, Hall, Jenney, Johnson, Morse, Potter, Riley, Schuster, Shaw, Spalding, Stevens, Treadway—19.

And the bill was rejected. A prompt motion to "reconsider" was placed in the "orders of the day for to-morrow."

State Federation Petition.

The bill was the result of a petition from the State Federation. It was referred early in the year to the Committee on Labor and the Joint Judiciary Committee, sitting jointly. The total membership of these committees is twenty-seven. The Public Hearings bill came away with a recommendation that it "ought to pass" supported by eighteen of the twenty-seven. Only Senators Jenney of Hyde Park, Spalding of Cambridge and Potter of Worcester, and Representative Bishop of Newton were recorded as dissenting.

The bill is brevity itself:

Upon petition in writing by a public service corporation, or by 10 per cent. of its employes in that branch of the service to which the question relates; except in such corporations having less than 200 employes, and in such corporations by a majority of the employes in that branch of the service to which the question relates, a public hearing upon any question, grievance or complaint arising from the hours, wages or condition of employment of such employes shall be give by the State Commission or Board having supervision over such public service corporation.

At such hearing, all parties interested may be represented by counsel, and such Commission or Board shall have authority to render such decision, do such act, or make such recommendation, as they may deem proper.

Senator Norcross of Monson, Republican urged the Senate to take the bill as something fair to the stockholder, the public and the employe. Senator Vahey also urged its passage. And, nineteen to sixteen, the Senate turned it down.

GRAND OPERA AT CASTLE SQUARE

The Castle Square Theatre will reopen next Monday evening with a return of grand opera. The week will be divided between "Il Trovatore" and "La Traviata," the former being put on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday matinee, and the latter on Thursday and Saturday evenings and Wednesday matinee.

The season, as heretofore, will be under direction of William C. Masson. The company will include such favorites as Miss Clara Lane, Miss Helen Darling, Miss Louise LeBaron, Miss Josephine Islieb, Miss Amy Remly, J. K. Murray, George Tallman, David Cantori, Tom Greene and Francis J. Boyle.

"Our turn has come at last." Max Nordau, as mouthpiece for the Hungarian nobility, sneers at American women, and says Gladys Vanderbilt made lucky catch.

Get All the Milk.

All of the butter fat, all of the solids. Make milk dishes as good as they can be.

You will be rather astounded when you first use Van Camp's Milk in cooking.

Such richness, such flavor—you will wonder where we obtain it.

It comes solely from milk.

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated.

Nothing is altered, nothing added. No sugar, no starch, no preservative.

The delicious flavor surprises you simply because you are not used to whole milk.

Your milkman's milk—if from the top of the can—lacks many of the solids.

If from the middle or bottom of the can, it lacks much of the butter fat.

In Van Camp's alone do you get all of the milk elements, just as they come from the cow.

You don't know what you miss —you who still cling to the milkman.

Make just one milk dish with Van Camp's and you'll be converted forever.

You'll know, for the first time, maybe, the exquisite flavor that comes from whole, rich milk.

That flavor is enhanced when you know that the milk is pure.

Our dairies are sanitary, our cows are inspected. We make a business of cleanliness.

Then the milk is sterilized.

You can use Van Camp's, as you can't raw milk, without a thought of germ infection.

And Van Camp's is even more economical.

It's as thick as thick cream. So thick that you add one part water for coffee.

Yet it costs half what cream costs.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk, and the cost per quart is about what you pay now.

But you have no waste. The saving in a year is enormous.

Then think what it means to have rich milk or cream always on tap when you want it.

Never too much or too little.

Are you missing all this while thousands of your neighbors enjoy it?

We have dairies in five states now, with 20,000 cows. Yet we are still unable to supply a tenth of the people who would want this milk if they knew it.

Please—for your own sake—try it today.

We publish an excellent cook book, showing the exact cost of all sorts of milk dishes. Please write for it—it's free. Address Van Camp Packing Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

SEARCHLIGHTS SWEEP SEA TO GET SMUGGLER

Schooner With Cargo of Aguardiente Captured Off New Bedford Harbor.

FOURTEEN BARRELS SEIZED

NEW BEDFORD, May 14.—The old romantic interest in smuggling is revived here by a revenue cutter seizure of a vessel which government officials declare was engaged in contraband trade. There is no fast patrol along the shore as in days of yore, and smugglers do not tack and tack in the offing until flashing lights on some headland give the signal that the armed officers of the law are lax in vigilance, or are somewhere else, and it is safe to land a cargo on which no custom duty is paid.

Now the smugglers have a harder task, for the revenue boats are propelled by steam and equipped with searchlights which sweep the sea with a glare, making it impossible, with no lights visible bow or stern, for a blockade runner to glide like a ghost into harbor.

Scene of Strange Spectacle.

Neighboring waters have been the scene of a strange spectacle for the twentieth century. The searchlight of the revenue cutter Dexter has been employed and used to reveal to its crew the presence of a schooner suspected of smuggling. United States treasury officials believe that a huge smuggling syndicate has for years been conducting a surreptitious traffic in New Bedford.

When the Brava schooner A. E. Whyland was seized at about midnight a search below decks revealed a cargo of aguardiente, which is a fiery liquor. The officers of the Dexter allege that the Whyland was trying to sneak into New Bedford harbor with lights "dowsed" when the searchlight of the revenue cutter exposed her to view and Lieutenant Malloy and a [illegible] crew from the Dexter promptly boarded her.

Fourteen barrels of aguardiente were found in her hold.

The commander of the Dexter was notified that a fleet of schooners was due from the Cape Verde Island of Brava and that it was suspected that some would attempt to smuggle liquor. It was this information which made the Dexter's crew alert. The Whyland, under command of Captain A. Antone Perry, left Fogo thirty days ago and was off the entrance to the [illegible] at 1 a. m. with no lights showing when [illegible] lurking Dexter hailed the Brava boat.

Consternation in Crew.

There was consternation on the faces of the alleged smugglers when the revenue [illegible] climbed over the rail. The Whyland was supposed to be in ballast.

The seizure of the Whyland came upon the heels of United States court proceedings. Marcelin Gomes, owner of the schooner David A. Story, Captain Jose Domingoes, her skipper, Joseph Alves, and Interpreter Perry have been held in bonds for appearance at a Boston tribunal upon the charge of smuggling.

JAILS WOMAN SHOPLIFTER

Helen Gray, an unusually pretty girl, heavily veiled and dressed in the height of fashion, stood before Judge Sullivan in the second session, Municipal Criminal Court, charged with shoplifting to-day.

It was told how she slipped away from a down-town department store yesterday with a silk waist valued at $7.50. The court was also reminded that in 1906 she had been fined $15 for the same offence and $3 in 1907.

"Please give me another chance, your honor," she pleaded.

But the judge said that she had had two chances to reform, and he told her she must go to the House of Correction for a month to make her resolutions. With bowed head and faltering step she was led from the courtroom.

TORNADO SPREAD RUIN AND DEATH IN SOUTH

ONE BIG TOWN WHOLLY WIPED OUT—MILITIA RUSHES TO AID.

SHREVEPORT, La., May 14.—In a tornado which swept over a large section of the northern part of the State the town of Gilliam is in complete ruins to-day, and one-half of the population are dead with many seriously injured.

The Governor has ordered a company of militia, with tents and provisions, to the relief of the survivors.

Tremendous damage was done by the tornado in all directions and from many points dispatches tell of deaths and injuries on plantations. The storm was erratic, wiping out crops and crumpling up houses in spots and hardly touching in others.

The hardest blow fell on Gilliam, which is thirty miles north of here. The town was built only a few years ago, and many houses were going up under a sudden wave of prosperity. Not a structure was left standing.

The tornado struck down all trees and structures in its path. The storm also swept over a graveyard near the town, and tombstones were thrown down and others were turned round completely in the ground.

Relief Train in Difficulty.

A relief train has been sent out from here, but it is believed it will have difficulty in reaching the stricken town. The storm did much damage here, but no lives were lost. From points north, however, it is reported that washouts have blocked the track and that at one exposed spot the tornado twisted the rails.

Six physicians and eight nurses are on the train, which also carries a large quantity of provisions.

Bodies are held in the ruins of the houses and no effort is being made to recover them.

It was reported by telephone from a farm house two miles from the town, and which was out of the track of the storm, that the survivors seemed dazed and helpless from the devastation that had fallen on them.

Farmers Get the Injured.

Farmers rode in in buggies and on horseback and took thirty injured persons from the ruins.

Grave fear is held that other small towns suffered severely as all wires are down to them.

Reports from all directions are slow in coming in, owing to the damage done both to the telephone and telegraph wires.

All the lines of railroad northward from this city and from Little Rock are experiencing difficulties because of the damage done by tornado and by the downpour which followed it.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas train from Memphis went into a washout near Conack, eighteen miles west of Greenwood. The locomotive and baggage cars were overturned, and the engineer, fireman and baggagemaster were seriously injured. The track then was washed away in front of and behind the wreck, and the passengers and injured trainmen were caught in the terrific rainstorm, without being able to secure aid, although a wrecking train was ordered out at once.

Rush Relief Trains.

The Texas & Pacific trains from New Orleans are tied up, the tracks having been washed away.

Relief trains will run over both the Shreveport, Texas & Nacogdoches railroad and Cotton Belt, and the hospitals here are preparing to receive and care for the injured.

Great loss of life in the country is feared. No loss of life is reported from Oil City, but the damage to the derricks and buildings there will be many thousands of dollars. The Kansas City Southern passenger train, south-bound, got through the city safely and reported great havoc wrought in the cyclone's wake.

DEATH IN IOWA.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 14.—A tornado in Southwestern Iowa destroyed many farm houses in Fremont and Page counties and killed Mrs. Will Finley of Northboro, in Fremont County.

DAMAGE IN KANSAS.

CANEY, Kan., May 14.—A storm wrecked the Caney glass factory, unroofed S. K. Rhinehart's store and damaged several other buildings.

TEXAS TORNADO SWEPT.

PALESTINE, Tex., May 14.—During a torrential rain a tornado formed about eight miles north of this city and passed northeast, causing much damage.

HEARS SISTER IS KILLED.

VICKSBURG, Miss., May 14.—E. D. Spain of Booneville, who was attending the Pythian meeting, received a telegram calling him home and announcing that his sister was killed in a cyclone at Corsicana.

BIG CLEVELAND TRUST COMPANY CLOSES DOORS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CLEVELAND, O., May 14.—With liabilities of $2,700,000 the Reserve Trust Company failed to open its doors to-day. An assignment has been filed to the Superior Savings and Trust Company. Assets are placed at the same figure as the liabilities.

A preliminary statement says that depositors will be paid in full. The financial stringency is given as the cause of the failure. This is the second big failure in Cleveland within a week.

FIND RUNAWAY GIRL WITH AUNT

SALEM, May 14.—Miss Ida Roy, fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roy of Glendale street, who disappeared from her home last Thursday, was located by the police to-day. She was found at the home of an aunt in Amesbury.

The police were aided in locating the young girl by her cousin, Clement Roy, who upon seeing stories of her disappearance in the newspapers, notified the police that he had seen her in Amesbury. Last night her father and Inspector Dennis of the Salem police went to Amesbury and brought the girl back.

In the Salem court today, Joseph Roy swore out a warrant against his daughter, charging her with being a stubborn child.

SIX MONTHS FOR STABBING.

For cutting Mary Pond, a servant, with a shoemaker's knife a week ago, William R. Hatfield, fifty, formerly of No. 76 Main street, Charlestown, was to-day sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction by Judge Preble in the Charlestown District Court. The victim's injury proved less serious than first anticipated.

RAISES GLASS OF ALE TO LIPS, THEN EXPIRES

A man with a letter in his pocket addressed to Herman Jaehing, No. 69 Mozart street, Roxbury, dropped dead in Conway's saloon, No. 48 School street, to-day.

The man walked up to the bar at 9.45 and said: "Give me a glass of ale."

He raised the glass toward his lips, threw up both hands and fell back to the floor dead.

Dr. Wylie of the Boston Dispensary said death was due to heart failure. The body was taken to Jones's undertaking rooms on Lagrange street.

The man was about fifty years old and weighed 200 pounds. He wore a gray sack suit of good cut and material and a light-colored derby hat. In his pockets were a gold watch, a considerable sum of money and the letter.

LODGING HOUSE COMMISSION NAMED

Mayor Hibbard to-day announced the names of his special lodging house commission. The commission will be made up as follows: Joseph Lee, No. 96 Mt. Vernon street; Miss Maude M. Rockwell, No. 155 Ruthven street, Roxbury; Rabbi Isaac Heller, No. 50 Vernon street, Roxbury; A. J. Peckham, No. 14 Mt. Vernon street, and Miss Josephine Bleakie, No. 90 St. Mary's street. All are well-known settlement workers.

OPERA, DRAMA AND COMEDY AT THE THEATRES

Wide Diversity of Offerings at Local Playhouses as Season Nears Close.

NEW PLAYS NEXT WEEK

Grand opera at popular prices has been a very successful experiment at the Majestic Theatre. The Knickerbocker company is one of the best operatic organizations heard in Boston in years. "Traviata" will be sung to-night.

Reba Donaldson is one of the best dancers seen on a Boston stage recently. She is a great hit at the Columbia this week. Her Highland sword dance has made everybody sit up and take notice.

"The Man of the Hour" is nearing the end of its phenomenal run at the Tremont Theatre. It's last performance at this house will be on Saturday evening, May 23. It's popularity has not waned in the least.

"The Lion and the Mouse" is drawing well at the Hollis Street Theatre and its success shows how Boston audiences really like a powerful American play.

Richard Carle's "Mary's Lamb" is making the town laugh. The longer this company holds its comedy sessions on the Colonial Theatre stage the more favor the public seems to show author and support.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are at Keith's this week in a sketch called "Billy's Tombstones," which gives the capital players a splendid chance to appear at their best. The whole Keith bill, in fact, is a very strong one.

Kendall in Ade's Play.

Ezra Kendall, one of the drollest comedians now before the public, will open at the Majestic Theatre on Monday evening in George Ade's "The Land of the Dollars." It is described as a great winner.

"The Rounders" at the Globe Theatre is an entertainment that has caught on. It is one of the liveliest musical comedies of the day and gives some clever comedians a chance to make big audiences laugh.

"The Girl of the Golden West" will not be seen on the Boston Theatre stage after Saturday night. The bill there next week will be "Zaza," and it will be given with the full strength of a stock company which plays everything well.

Patrons of the Bowdoin Square not only see thrilling moving pictures, but have in "Her Second Time on Earth" a melodrama which quickens the most phlegmatic circulation. To-night will be a souvenir photograph occasion.

All that is doing at the Howard this week is very entertaining. The specialties are fine and the Cozy Corner Girls are a talented lot of young persons. Belle Travers is the big star in the galaxy.

Al Reeves's Burlesquers are one of the strongest aggregations in the musical comedy line. Together with continuous vaudeville they made a strong bill at the Palace Theatre.

Get the Baseball Scores, Too.

Baseball scores reported by innings appeal to fans at the Theatre Premier. The motion pictures are among the best ever shown, and the illustrated songs always make a hit.

Sam A. Scribner's big show is one of the best costumed organizations on the road. It is playing at the Lyceum this week and the clever burlesquers have a fine chance to make audiences merry through their antics in "The North Pole."

Master Aurlemma, who is singing this week at the Bijou Dream, is a boy soprano with a remarkable voice. The Yellowstone Park pictures are well worth seeing.

Young Son of Millionaire Elopes With Poor Mill Girl; Romance of Gridiron Battle

Pretty mill-girl bride of Stanley B. Puffer of Medford.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD.

Mrs. Michael McNally dropped dead to-day at her home in Hancock court, Quincy, from heart disease. She is survived by three sons and two daughters.

Father, Head of Soda Fountain Firm, Awaits Couple With Open Arms.

Parental blessings await the young bride of Stanley B. Puffer of Medford, prospective heir to the famous "soda fountain" millions, when the couple return from a honeymoon which followed a quiet wedding of young Puffer to Miss Amelia Madeline Dimosh of Lebanon, N. H., at Providence, last Saturday.

Although the wedding of the wealthy young college graduate to a pretty mill operative came as a great surprise to friends in Boston and Medford, the young man's father, Luther Puffer, insists he knew it was to be and is satisfied.

Miss Dimosh is not wealth, nor even well-to-do, but she is pretty. Her father, a French-Canadian, is a poor cobbler in Lebanon. Amelia worked in the local mills with hundreds of other girls.

The couple met at a football game between the Tufts-Dartmouth freshman teams at Hanover, N. H., in the Fall of 1907, when Puffer was a freshman at Tufts. The young college lad was struck with the mill girl's beauty and secured an introduction which resulted in a romance culminating in their marriage Saturday.

Stanley B. Puffer is a grandson of Alvin Puffer, proprietor of the Puffer Manufacturing Company, a wealthy concern with a factory at Winchester. Stanley Puffer is a fair-haired, clean-cut youth youth, twenty years old. He entered Tufts in 1907, but left after a year or so to assist his father in the soda fountain business.

He has two older brothers who married sisters and who live near the family home, No. 321 Winthrop street, Medford, better known as "Puffer's Corner." The two brothers and Stanley are the heirs to the estate of several millions left by the grandfather.

Speaking of the wedding, Mr. Puffer, senior, said: "Their engagement was announced four or five months ago. We expected they would be married in the Summer but Stanley told me Friday that he was going to be married the next day.

"Why was not Stanley married at home?" was asked the father.

"For purely personal reasons of his own," he replied. "We have no objections to the young lady. She is a very fine young woman."

MRS. GUNNESS SEEN SPEEDING AWAY IN AUTO?

LAPORTE, Ind., May 14.—An automobile carrying a man and a woman who answers the description of Mrs. Belle Gunness was seen speeding through Hobart, Ind., at 7 o'clock on the morning of the fire which destroyed the Gunness home.

This statement was made to-day by Deputy Sheriff Gill of Hobart.

Gill declares the machine was running at terrific speed. It came into Hobart from the direction of LaPorte and went out towards Chicago. Gill is confident that the woman in the machine was Mrs. Gunness, in spite of the evidence which appears to show that she perished in the fire.

Attorney Worden, counsel for Ray Lamphere to-day declared that one of the defense's valuable witnesses has been spirited out of town by State's Attorney Smith and Sheriff Smutzer. This man is David Havens. He was one of those who helped take the four bodies from the ruins of the Gunness home. Worden declares Havens can tell a story that will help clear Lamphere, and that Sheriff Smutzer, as soon as he discovered this ordered the man out of town.

The authorities continue their investigation of the revelations made in a letter received by Chief of Police Cochrane from Fred Hafle, of Cleveland, describing the operations of a male accomplice of Mrs. Gunness.

Two letters received from State Attorney Smith from Brooklyn and threatening to kill him unless he drops the investigation, are believed to be the work of cranks.

Smith says he will pay no attention to them. Both letters were signed "X. X." One threatened to kill Smith and the other stated "Belle and me" are in hiding in Brooklyn and that Lamphere did not start the Gunness fire.

Sheriff Smutzer to-day received a letter from Milwaukee signed by "John Williamson," in which the writer states that Mrs. Gunness is alive; that he knows where she is, and will turn her over to the police within three days if a reward of $5,000 is offered.

ARRAIGN GIRL ON CHARGE OF HORSE THEFT

PROVIDENCE, May 14.—Dressed like a girl from a Western cattle ranch, with cowboy's boots and a sombrero tilted rakishly on her glossy black hair, Helen Reisberg, a comely brunette of nineteen years, to-day stood before Judge Lee and pleaded not guilty to a charge of horse stealing.

It was the second time the young woman, who was arrested last night at her East Providence home, has been arraigned for appropriating horseflesh from the Broadway stables. Two years ago she and a sixteen-year-old companion, Alice Anderson of Seekonk, Mass., [illegible] with a fine of $20 for cruelty to animals.

Held in $500 Bonds.

The court to-day held the fair prisoner for trial on May 22, requiring bonds of $500.

It was a year ago last March that Miss Reisberg, with two men, hired a rig valued at $232 at the Broadway stables. The police said that all three drove to New Bedford, where they sold the outfit for $50.

The girl and one of the men went to Ohio, the third of the party returning to this city, where he was arrested. Her companion was also taken in Ohio on a larceny charge. Three weeks ago Miss Reisberg appeared in her old haunts in East Providence, being heavily veiled when she went about town.

Last night Inspector Berger and two patrolmen surrounded the house, after the girl's mother declared she was not at home, and entering, found her sitting in the kitchen. She was taken to the central police station and locked in a cell all night.

Says She Didn't Steal Horse.

"I did not steal the horse," cried the girl when asked by the Judge what she had to say to-day. Further than this she would make no statement. She told the police that while she was living in Ohio she worked on a farm and did a man's work.

Miss Reisberg is well known to the police. Five years ago she had a man friend arrested on a serious charge, but he was freed.

PRETTY JEAN REID WHO WILL BE WED IN THE KING'S CHAPEL

Photo copyright, by Town and Country.

C. W. KIMBALL DIES SUDDENLY

Charles W. Kimball, assistant registrar of deeds, died to-day at his home on Pope's Hill, Dorchester, of heart failure. He was not feeling very well when he left the office Friday night, and had been at home ever since. He was about sixty-five years of age, and a veteran of the Civil War. He has been in the registry of deeds since 1871. A widow and daughter survive him.

JEAN REID WILL WED IN ROYAL CHAPEL

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, May 14.—Because the Countess of Dudley must leave for Australia to take up her official position as wife of the Governor General at an early date in July, and because she is most anxious to be present at the wedding of her brother-in-law, the Hon. John Ward, to Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, arrangements are being made to have that wedding take place during the last week in June.

It is an open secret that the Dudley family are most anxious for a quiet wedding, without any undue display, and Miss Reid herself is just as anxious to avoid ostentation, but it has been pointed out to both families that it will be impossible to limit the number of guests without giving offence, and as the King and Queen are more than likely to be present at the ceremony, a quiet wedding will be out of the question, unless the King allows the couple to be married in the Chapel Royal, St. James Palace, where several of the King's household have been married.

The chapel is very small and would hold only the intimate friends and relatives of both families. In view of all the circumstances it is quite probable that the wedding will have the distinction of taking place in the royal chapel.

The only bridesmaid selected at present is the pretty daughter of John Ridgely Carter, first secretary of the American embassy. Mr. Ward has received autograph letters of congratulation from both the King and Queen.

Written by the Queen of Sheba herself. Marvellously interesting manuscript found, which narrates in detail the georgeous Ethiopian Queen's visit to King Solomon. See next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

DECREES OF DIVORCE GRANTED TO M'KEES

FRENCH COURT GRANTS SEPARATION TO EACH PARTY IN SENSATIONAL CASE.

Special Cable to Hearst News Service

PARIS, May 14.—The French court to-day formally granted a decree of divorce to both Mr. and Mrs. A. Hart McKee upon recommendation of the Attorney-General. The verdict was not unexpected because in his summing up subsequent to the presentation of arguments the Attorney-General said that he thought a divorce ought to be granted both to husband and wife.

The costs of the divorce proceedings are ordered divided between husband and wife. The latter is given the custody of her child, little Hugh Tevis, McKee's stepson, and McKee is required to contribute $200 monthly toward his support. Mrs. McKee being independently wealthy no financial allowance is made her. Settlement of financial matters pending between them is referred to the chamber of notaries.

McKee's libel suit against his wife and her father is dismissed," the court holding that he has failed to prove them responsible for the press campaign he says has been waged against him in America.

The McKees were married in Europe three years ago, immediately following the granting of a divorce decree, for which the husband had been suing for some time.

The divorce decree to-day comes as the climax to one of the most notorious international scandals in which an American's name has been linked.

Mrs. McKee before her marriage was Mrs. Hugh Tevis, the widow of the wealthy California turfman. Her maiden name was Cornelia Baxter, the daughter of Colonel G. M. Baxter of Knoxville, Tenn. She was famous as a beauty and is rich in her own right.

McKee Also Married Before.

McKee has been married once before. He is the son of H. Sellers McKee, a Pittsburg millionaire, who is now a resident of New York and Paris. Mr. McKee's first wife was Lydia Sutton of Pittsburg, who divorced him five years ago.

The McKee divorce case for upward of a year has interested the American colony in Paris, where both were young, prominent and wealthy, with their social position fixed. They entertained lavishly and have quite an extensive friendship among the titled families of the French and Italian capitals. The long series of hearings brought out a consecutive account of scandals and the documentary evidence was of such a character as to call down from the court a warning upon the heads of the barristers.

Mrs. McKee's Side Heard First.

Early in March the attorneys began presenting their evidence. Maitre Barboux, for Mrs. McKee, presented his side of the case first. The allegations accused Mr. McKee with undue friendship with the servants, of parsimony toward his wife, of threats made against Mrs. McKee's child and of efforts to stir up reports which would besmirch the good names of innocent people. In this respect M. Barboux related that McKee wrote a series of society letters for a New York publication which created a sensation at the time of their publication. These letters were signed "Fifi." On the other hand, counsel for McKee, Maitre Labori replied in scathing terms when he arraigned the wife. He accused Mrs. McKee of writing improper letters, of contracting great gambling debts and of deserting her husband. In addition to this he denied all the charges which the wife made against McKee.

MISS ELKINS TO WED DUKE IN OCTOBER

LONDON, May 14.—The Duke d'Abruzzi and the beautiful Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, it is announced here, will wed in October, perhaps in Washington. Formal announcement of the betrothal is expected to be made after the Duke leaves the battleship Regina on another leave of absence in September. He will then depart immediately for the United States and will be accompanied by his brother, the Count of Turin, and his cousin, the Prince of Udino.

One of the witnesses at the wedding, according to report, will be Prince Nicholas of Montenegro, father of the Queen of Italy. The Duke has returned unexpectedly to Rome from Naples. He has had an interview with King Victor Emmanuel, the Queen Mother and Princess Letitia.

The King maintained the usual secrecy regarding the interview, but it is known the marriage was discussed. The King, it is also known, has been unable to overcome the known prejudices of the Mother Queen. The Duke personally informed the King of the decisions arrived at with his two brothers when they met abroad the Regina Elena a month ago.

There was a luncheon after the conference at the Quirinal, and subsequently the Duke left Rome for Spezia to rejoin his battleship. Announcement of the young Duke's marriage to Miss Elkins, when it comes, will be through the Stefani agency and in the Gazetta Ufficialo. It will be just a plain statement, giving the time and place of the wedding.

SONGBIRDS IN 'LA TRAVIATA' WIN APPLAUSE

"La Traviata," as sung by the Knickerbocker Grand Opera Company at the Majestic Theatre last evening before a considerable audience pleased exceedingly, judging from the applause. It was a very popular performance, and the vigor of the singers was a response to cordial and very evident appreciation. Increased attendance over the previous evening was the first spur to the company.

Resounding applause was the reward of all the principals. It was a better performance than the company gave in "Trovatore." The work of its members, including the chorus, was distinctly good.

Mme. Padovani was Violetta. She did not look the character. She is too robust to counterfeit a chronic invalid. But she showed her dramatic training and intelligence and her acting of the role was good. She sang florid passages with impressive fervor and her efforts, all things considered, were very successful. An artist seldom receives more tumultuous applause.

Mr. Alessandroni appeared here for the first time as Germont. He has a voice of resonant power and good quality. Mr. Barili as Alfredo acted earnestly and sang with discretion. His voice is pleasing.

The orchestra did commendable work. To-night "Cavelleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" will be sung.

Slain Girl's Mother Crushed from Grief Over Cruel Tragedy

MRS. STAULA'S ANGUISH OVER LOSS OF BABY BEYOND HUMAN CONSOLATION.

By Katherine Carson.

"She was such a loving, tender baby. I can't believe she is here no more; that I'll never see her again; that she will never bring us the pretty flowers she loved so well," cried Mrs. Di Staula, the dark, dry-eyed mother of little Louise Staula, who met with such a terrible and mysterious death last Monday evening.

When I was ushered into the neat and comfortable home in Dedham, but a few hours after the body of the little light of the home had been laid away in the dark grave to sleep until the resurrection dawn, the sacred grief of that mother was too deep for even the promises of the Gospel to penetrate its gloom.

Surrounded by silent, sympathizing friends, and sitting in the plain little living room, I found the bereaved mother. Jennie, her pretty twelve-year-old daughter, sat at her mother's side. At times when sorrow swelled into great, painful sobs that rocked the mother's frame the little girl silently let her hand steal into her mother's, and just the slightest pressure reminded the sufferer that there were still others on earth who loved her and were to be loved.

Child's Divine Instincts.

But that was all. It was a beautiful, a piteous sight of the poignancy of grief and the almost divine instincts of white-souled children who have been sent as the comforters to those in distress.

"Oh, I can't believe my baby girl will never come back to me," moaned the mother. "She was the light of our home. Her cheery laugh came as a sunbeam when we were saddest. She was the prettiest of the flowers herself, and now this flower that was given me has faded, faded."

Hushed groups of women, their eyes tear-bedimmed, strong men who stole furtive glances at the mother and who then tried to hide the emotions which made their faces twitch and little children stood and sat around in the different rooms of the sorrow-smitten home. They were there to give what comfort they could and with taste remarkable in its refinement were mute in the presence of the greatest grief of mortal, the anguish of a stricken mother.

As Mrs. Di Staula told me about little Louise sobs shook her voice, and at times the tears, the blessed tears, nature's one relief in such piteous moments, flooded her eyes.

She told me how Louise loved the flowers, how she loved her little playmates and her few toys and her growing family of dolls, but most of all her homes and her mother. She spoke of her bright and bouyant nature and of the wonderful companion she was to everyone of the small household.

And while the mother talked to me, little Paula, the tiny dark-eyed sister of the murdered child, clung to her mother's skirts and smiled up into the sorrow-stained face and then coyly glanced at me and the other visitors in the home and wondered, wondered—no one could fathom what thoughts coursed through the tender mind and heart.

Mother's Thoughts in Shade.

But the mother's thoughts were with neither Jennie, the brave twelve-year-old daughter, nor with little Paula. They were groping their way into the shades of that dread and mysterious realm where little Louise's soul was threading its way up to the Light.

She told of the brief and happy life of the little girl so cruelly blotted out; of her joy in leading her little band of subjects to the fields where the flowers bloomed earliest and brightest; of her fondness for skipping rope; of the dolls she loved with maternal instinct beyond her years; and of how she sewed and mended their tiny wardrobes.

"On that dreadful day when she went away and didn't come back to me," said the mother as sobs all but choked her voice, "I went to the field where they told me she was to call her. No answer came and I called again and again.

"I went farther and farther through the field and then began to hunt among the bushes and tall grass. I went on, and on, and on, and then I saw her. There she was my baby, lying face downward on the grass. Oh, my darling; my Louise!

"Even then I did not realize, and I called to her again and again. 'Louise, Louise!' But she did not move and I went to her, thinking that she must be asleep, but when I reached her side something told me that she was dead, and I snatched her little body into my arms from the cold ground. She was dead!

"All I could say was, 'My God! They have killed my Louise!' I carried her in my arms, straining her dead body to my breast to warm her, and I took her to the house. That is all I know about it, lady. I don't think there is anything more to tell you."

Then came again the same far-off, dry-eyed stare of unseeing eyes that were trying, trying, trying to peer through that veil that hides the unknown from the known, the mortal from the immortal, and thus I left her.

RUBBER PLANT BURNS.

COLCHESTER, Conn., May 14.—The plant formerly owned by the Haywood Rubber Company, but which has been idle for the past fifteen years, burned to the ground. The plant consists of six two-story buildings. The loss will probably be total.

STEAMER RUNS INTO SCHOONER

There was excitement among fifty passengers aboard the Plant line steamer A. W. Perry at 11 a. m. to-day when the boat, returning from Halifax and making her dock at Commercial wharf, crashed into the boom of the fishing schooner Hortense, lying at T wharf. Part of the port rail of the Perry was torn away and a hole was stove through her superstructure into the purser's cabin.

Purser Crane was in the cabin at the time, but escaped injury. Captain Hawes had difficulty in quieting the frightened passengers.

POLICE SEARCH FOR CLUES TO SLAYER OF LOUISA STAULA IN DEDHAM TODAY

meadows as the train approached the Washington street bridge.

"Just as the car got opposite the 'island' I saw a man at the foot of the rise," said Loiario. "I could not describe him, for I did not see his face, but I did notice that he wore a white hat. His hat was the most prominent thing about him. He was walking slowly around the base of the knoll, looking away from the railroad.

SAW MAN AND GIRL IN MEADOW.

"Just as I saw this man I also observed the figure of a little girl on the top of the knoll. She was standing still. I did not recognize her at that distance, but I could see that she was a very small child.

"The man and the child were then about 150 feet apart, he being at the foot of the hill and she on the top. The incident I remember so well because that night I heard of the death of little Louise Staula."

Investigation of the statement of Loiario and tests have demonstrated that he could have seen a man and a child in the positions he describes.

The police have not abandoned the theory that the assailant of the little girl might have been a woman. An old-fashioned iron stovecover lifter, which it is not thought had lain where it was found long, was picked up near the spot where the girl was killed and is now in the possession of the police. It is thought that a woman might have used this to knock the child down, after which the stones were used in beating the little one to death. The ownership of the stovecover lifter has not yet been traced.

The name "Leonita Rosati" written with lead pencil upon a scrap of paper near where the body was found is regarded of possible significance. The piece of paper, evidently part of a manila envelope is faded and old, but the lead pencil writing is quite new and seems to have been scribbled with a careful and mature hand.

This bit of paper was found by Michael Ferroti, a sharp-eyed young man of the colony with detective instinct, and though the condition of the paper was not encouraging he quickly concluded that the freshness of the writing was worthy of attention and so retained the bit of paper for the police.

The police will investigate the report that a certain boy of the neighborhood who in the past has displayed evidences of an unusual temper made a remark which was deemed significant. It is reported that this lad on one occasion threw a butcher knife at a playmate for some fancied insult entirely disproportionate to the nature of the attack. Calling at the house on an errand the visitor said something to the lad that displeased him, whereupon, according to the story, the boy, acting upon a sudden impulse, and accompanying the act with angry words, deliberately hurled a big sharp knife with evident intent to do him injury.

This lad was out with the others during the search for the Staula girl Monday night. There was every reason to suppose the little girl was merely lost at that time. A young man met the boy by chance and casually remarked that it was queer what had become of little Louisa, whereupon the lad responded, "I bet she is killed."

These and a multitude of other small things are regarded of such possible bearing that the police have decided upon a general inquiry.

Liquor Bottles Found.

Whiskey and beer bottles found on the island were carefully examined yesterday. Three seemed freshly used, one of them containing a small quantity of beer.

All these bottles bore the stamp of a liquor dealer in West Roxbury. Inquiry at the wine store was not productive of information on the point, it being agreed that countless persons procured beer there to carry into Dedham, which is a no-license town, as well as other nearby places.

Chief Drugan of the Dedham police admits that two handkerchiefs were found, one of them near the scene of crime bearing blood stains. He said:

"I feel that this handkerchief may possibly figure in the murder, but realize that it may have been dropped by one of the searchers following the finding of the body. This and a multitude of other small points may be reached in the informal inquiry to be made to-day."

The police believe that the crime was committed on the spot where the body was found, and do not accept the theory that the child's body was dragged or carried to where it was found. One officer said:

"It looks to me as though the child was struck down from a blow upon the head, that in falling her right temple struck the roots of the tree, then that a shower of stones, nearly a dozen, were battered upon the child's head and back. One bruise was found as low as the thigh and another hit the arm, but most of them descended upon the helpless child's head and back. The skull was fractured and the girl's face driven into the leaves and soil. Where the flesh of the face, forehead and hands lay upon the twigs and uneven surfaces blood settled after death was giving the general effect of bruises. The nose was swollen, very likely from violent contact with the earth or prehaps a root or stone as she fell."

It is the announced policy of the authorities to enlist the help of everybody who can add a fact or substantial theory. The Dedham police department wish to assure everybody who knows anything bearing upon this crime to come forward. They will receive every protection and need not hold back from fear of being drawn into the case. If necessary their names will be withheld. Such service will be deeply appreciated by the authorities.

The police ask the man in the boat referred to by the mother of the child as being near the scene of search to come forward quietly and tell about it. They request the dark faced stranger seen on the "Island" Monday forenoon to speak out and be eliminated from the search, and they entreat the young and old of the vicinity who may have seen or heard the least thing that seemed suspicious to relate the fact at once.

ROOMMATE TELLS OF DISAPPEARANCE OF FRANK YEAGE

Bruno Russo, a young man who sleeps in the same room with Francesco Yeage, was seen to-day, and had this to say of his roommate:

"I saw Frank on Monday morning about 9 o'clock. He was then out in the yard playing with some little girls. Louise Staula was not there. I saw him again in the afternoon on Washington street. That was the last time that I saw him before 9 o'clock that night, when Frank came into the room in which we slept on the second floor.

"Usually when Frank came in to go to bed he danced and sang in such a noisy way that he waked us up if we happened to be asleep. On Monday evening he was very quiet, took off his clothing, put out the light and went to bed. He got up at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, and I did not see him again until 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, when he came home and went to bed in the same quiet manner that he had the night before.

"I never knew Frank to stay away so long as he has in the last three days."

Frank came to Dedham about three years ago, but little is known about his people. He is said to have a brother in New York. He does no regular work, and picks up a living by doing odd jobs. Russo said that he woke up about 2 o'clock this morning and looked in Frank's bed to see if he had come home, but found that he had not.

HITS MONOPOLY OF INSURANCE ON PLATE GLASS

Move to Send Bill to Next Legislature Is Blocked by Senate.

That the plate glass insurance monopoly in Massachusetts seems to be about to receive large and healthy competition appears to be due almost entirely to the fact that Senator Nathaniel P. Sowle, a merchant of New Bedford, paid a bill for plate glass insurance last Saturday, and that the bill amounted to $12.58.

When the Senate heard Sowle's testimony it was prompt to break away from Dr. Frank G. Wheatley and his Committee on Insurance. Chairman Wheatley had asked to have passed along to the "next General Court" a bill authorizing accident insurance companies to insure against the breaking of plate glass.

"Next General Court" was turned down and the bill ordered to a third reading, 20 to 13.

"There is no general demand for this legislation," Senator Wheatley explained, "only one petitioner asked for it."

Present "Unanimous" Report.

"And I am informed," said Senator Vahey, "that only two out of your fifteen committeemen were on hand to hear him. And yet you present here a 'unanimous' report of that committee, giving the petitioner 'leave to withdraw.' I am well aware that everything has been framed up here to give this bill a licking, and that 'Next General Court' seems the easiest way."

"But there is no demand for the law," insisted Dr. Wheatley.

"It may be," said Senator Vahey, "that the business men and property-owners of Massachusetts are not aware of the fact that the average rate in Massachusetts is $12.58, while it is only $9.44 in New York and $8.88 in New Jersey.

Wheatley questioned the figures.

"I guess they're right," said Sowle, "for I paid my bill last Saturday, and it was $12.58 fast enough. Here's the receipt."

Open Doors to Competition.

"It is well known here," Vahey insisted, "that a very active and very extensive lobby has been at work against this bill. I say that Massachusetts ought to throw open the door to competition in plate glass insurance as she has to in other kinds of insurance. Massachusetts is to-day the only State which doesn't allow accident insurance companies to do this sort of insurance."

The roll was called, and the Senate refused to put the matter over for a year.

Next General Court—Senators Abbott, Bell, Faxon, Garfield, Grimes, Hibbard, Keith, Monahan, Riley, Salter, Shaw, Stevens and Wheatley—13.

Do Something Now—Butler, Cowee, Dean, Dickinson, Gallond, Hall, Halley, Johnson, Mahoney, McEttrick, Mitchell, Norcross, Richmond, Schuster, Sowle, Spalding, Treadway, Turner, Vahey and Williams—20.

Then the bill was ordered to a third reading.

SHUMAN STORE FIRE BRIGADE MINSTRELS

First Annual Performance in Jordan Hall Proves a Grand Success.

HUNDREDS ENJOY EVENT

The first annual minstrel show of the members of the A. Shuman & Co.'s fire brigade in Jordan Hall last evening proved a gala event for the hundreds of employes of the firm who filled every seat in the big room and thoroughly enjoyed the entire performance.

The musical director was Jesse Cunha, Frank Thompson was interlocutor and Frank Sullivan was stage director.

The ends were William F. Maher, Miss Virginia Parris, Oscar Bogrette, bones; William H. Ratigan, Miss Emma Winslow, Stephen Welch, tambos. The soloists were John Downey, Sadie Perry and Miss Gertrude Barnard.

Particularly successful numbers were sung by William F. Maher, Stephen Welch and Miss Virginia Parris. The second part of the programme contained a whistling solo, experiments in magic and buck and wing dances.

The chorus was composed of:

Bertha Hupp, Virginia M. Parris, Gertrude L. Ryan, Annie Geary, Katharine Collins, Helen Kennedy, Mary Cunha, Clara Nova, Esther Hanrahan, May V. Ryan, Sophia Carmasin, Ray Phillips, Ethel Rosenwald, Sadie Perry, Katherine Lee, Annie Nugent, Emma Winslow, Gertrude Davis, Katherine McGinnity, Ada Borden, Nellie Ryan, Helen Norton, Katherine MacDonald, Gertrude Donovan, Katherine Mullen, Katherine Mead, Mary Ryan, Florence Russell, Ada Borden, John C. How to Get Rid of Fat.

A Remarkable Discovery That Can Reduce Fat Harmlessly at the Rate of a Pound a Day.

Send For a Free Trial Box. It May Save Your Life.

A quick, harmless reducer of fat, called Rengo, has come into popular use which far eclipses any method or treatment heretofore used.

Death From "Fatty Heart" Comes At The Most Unexpected Moment.

Eat Rengo Like Fruit or Candy.

Rengo is perfectly harmless, pleasant to take, and it is chewed like candy. It attacks abnormal tissue with unerring accuracy, and causes a gradual, harmless but effective reduction in weight, and without leaving wrinkles which are nearly always present after taking drugs and other dangerous materials commonly called "anti-fats."

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid, by the Rengo Co., 3212 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores. NINE HUNDRED GRANITE MEN STRIKE AT QUINCY

TWELVE FIRMS WHO SIGNED SCHEDULE ARE REFUSED POWER TO RUN YARDS.

Following the strike of 900 granite cutters and tool sharpeners in about 250 Quincy yards to-day, twelve small firms outside of the National Association of Granite Manufacturers complained to the union officials that their pneumatic power had been cut off by association members because they had signed the three-year wage schedule repudiated by the larger concerns.

As a result of this action thirty-six yards not affected by the strike were idle.

Mayor William T. Shea made a new attempt to-day to settle the strike, and urged both sides to send representatives to a joint conference this afternoon. The employers are stubborn in their refusal to sign the agreement, and it is feared that a deadlock will result and a long fight will be waged.

Terms of Agreement.

By the terms of the bill of prices agreed on at a joint conference of the national executive boards of both the manufacturers and the Granite Cutters' Union, held at the Quincy House on March 24, the men would be paid minimum wages of $2.40 per day of eight hours, and only union men would be employed. Though the Quincy employers assented to the settlement of the dispute by the conference, when the executive boards reported in favor of the men the manufacturers refused to abide by the decision, and declared that two of the four members of their own board had no legal right to sit in the conference.

The Quincy branch of the Granite Cutters' Union, at a meeting held Monday night, delivered an ultimatum to the employers, declaring that unless the new three-year bill of prices were signed by last night all the union employes would refuse to work to-day. The chief cause of disagreement in this schedule is the clause reading: "We have the right to work for whom we please, and you have the right to hire whom you please."

Only one member of the Manufacturers' McIntosh. Some 36 firms not in the organization have met the new schedule. The quaries are not affected by the strike.

The trouble in the yards comes at an especially inopportune time of the year, as Memorial Day is near and a large number of orders are to be filled for monuments before that date.

James Russell, chairman of the local branch of the union, who has presided at all the meetings held, said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that the men would stay out until the employers met their terms.

Extended Time for Signing.

"We met them half way," he said, "and we both agreed to leave the points at issue to the national executive boards, which met together at the Quincy House on March 24. That conference decided in favor of the cutters. The local manufacturers understood that they were to abide by the decision, yet they refused to sign the new three-year schedule, calling for eight hours a day and a minimum wage of 30 cents an hour.

"At our meeting Monday night it was agreed after considerable discussion to give the manufacturers until last night to sign, and that the men would refuse to work to-day in all yards where the employers refused to sign."

The employers who are holding out declare that the clause in the new bill relating to union labor is illegal, and that they would be liable to prosecution if they agreed to it. They also dispute the status of two of the four members of the National Executive Board which decided in favor of their workmen. The union leaders point out, though, that they made no protest of these members before the conference went against them.

Mayor Seeks Settlement.

Under the agreement which expired March 1 the men worked ten hours a day and received on an average $2.85 per day. Though there were numerous points of dispute, all the men have remained at work pending a settlement of the wage question until to-day.

$50 FINE ENDS POLICE RAID ON DOCTORS' CLUB

As a result of the sensational raid on the Physicians' and Surgeons' Club at No. 669 Boylston street in the Back Bay, by Sergeants Perley S. Skillings, Henry F. Barry and Timothy F. Harrington of Station 16, who found a complete card gambling paraphernalia, Dr. William R. Brown, an officer of the club, has paid a fine of $50.

The whole affair has been shrouded in the greatest secrecy, and it was not until to-day that Captain Jones of Station 16 swore out a warrant against Dr. Brown, charging him with "keeping and maintaining a common nuisance for the purpose of unlawful gaming," and that Dr. Brown went into the first session of the Municipal Court Monday afternoon, waived the reading of the warrant, pleaded guilty and paid the fine.

As a result of this the Excise Board has sent notice to the Physicians' and Surgeons' Club, revoking its liquor license. This fact a member of the board made public to-day.

Dr. Brown's appearance in court was carefully kept secret. He walked into court and waived the reading of the charge, pleaded guilty and paid his fine of $50 in less than one minute. Then he walked out of the courtroom, the spectators in the place being in entire ignorance of the case and of whom the doctor was.

The court officials, clerks and all, kept the matter close, and it was not until to-day when the secret leaked that the warrant with the court records of the facts in the case and its determination was seen.

FRITZI SCHEFF GETS DIVORCE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Fritzi Scheff, former Metropolitan Opera House singer an dnow Charles B. Dillingham's star in "Mlle. Modiste," los ther title of Countess Von Bardeleben to-day when Supreme Court Justice McCall signed a decree granting her an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Count Frederick Wilhelm Gustav Carl Von Bardeleben. The action for divorce was brought early in January and was heard by Referee Edmund E. Wise.

ROBBED, ASKS THIEF TO DIVIDE

NEW YORK, May 14.—By an open letter to the woman pickpocket who robbed her of $800 in a Sixth avenue department store, Miss Meleah DeWitt, a young teacher in public school No. 8, Brooklyn, hopes to recover at least part of the money, which was all she possessed in the world.

In her letter addressed to the woman who robbed her, Miss DeWitt says:

"What I want to ask you is this: Will you return half of the money you stole from me? Will you return a quarter of it? Will you return even $100? Surely you can send me back such a small bit when you keep such a big bit."

REFUSED CASH; THUGS BEAT MAN AND WOMAN

Because their demand for money was refused, four thugs who entered the store of Tony Caprone of 82 London street, East Boston, yesterday, brutally beat the storekeeper and his wife and inflicted such a severe wound on the cheek of the woman by a sharp stone that it was necessary for her to be taken to the Relief Station. The police to-day are hunting the thugs and expect to apprehend them from the description given by Caprone.

ROOSEVELT URGES WAR ON WHITE PLAGUE

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Theodore Roosevelt has been elected to another presidency—this time of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, which will hold its sessions in Washington next October. If official duties prevented him presiding at all the meetings, the president added, he would deputize Secretary Cortelyou to take his place in the chair.

Commenting on the anti-tuberculosis propaganda, the President says:

"The importance of the crusade against tuberculosis, in the interest of which this congress convenes, cannot be overestimated, when it is realized that tuberculosis costs our country 200,000 lives a year and the entire world over 2,000,000 lives a year, besides constituting a most serious handicap to material prosperity and happiness.

"Science has demonstrated that this disease can be stamped out, but the rapidity and completeness with which this can be accomplished, depends upon the promptness with which the new doctrines about tuberculosis can be inculcated into the minds of people and engrafted on our customs, habits and laws.

"The work of this Congress will bring the results of the latest studies and investigations before the profession at large, and place in the hands of our physicians all the newest and most approved methods of treating the disease.

"The international congress on tuberculosis is in the interest of universal peace. We should edeavor to make it the greatest and most fruitful congress which has yet been held, and I assure you of my interest and services to that end."

MRS. LEAVITT TO TAKE STUMP

OMAHA, May 14.—Ruth Bryan Leavitt, daughter of William J. Bryan, will take the stump in Colorado, Wyoming and other Western States, and will make political speeches in favor of her father, if he is nominated for the Presidency. This information was brought to Omaha to-day by Major J. C. Dahlman, Bryan's great political and personal friend, who has been in Denver arranging for the Democratic National Convention.

Mrs. Leavitt has made a study of political economy, and inherits the oratorical ability of her father. She is a ready and forceful speaker. She will confine her efforts to her own sex, among whom she is expected to secure many votes for her father.

PROTEST BILL ON EDUCATION COMMISSION

Manufacturers all over Massachusetts are being urged to-day to attend the hearing before the ways and means committee of the House at the State House at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning and voice a strong and united protest against the bill extending the life of the Commission on Industrial Education only two years. Circulars setting forth the importance of the matter have been sent to all manufacturers by Robert A. Woods, chairman of the Industrial Education Conference Committee.

The bill practically puts the commission out of existence in two years. Its passage would be a bad blow to industrial education and would render futile much of the good work that has already been done by A. Lincoln Filene and other members of the commission. An extension of ten years, members of the commission believe, would be adequate.

In his inaugural address, Governor Guild recommended that the commission be made permanent. Manual training in the public schools, the Governor suggested, is valuable in directing the interest of the child toward its life work, but it cannot fully fit him for that work. For thorough and complete technical training, the Governor added, technical schools, supervised by a permanent commission, would be needed.

Should the present bill become a law, it is pointed out that cities and towns will refuse to appropriate large sums for the buildings and equipment of independent industrial schools, especially in view of the fact that the Commission would not be in existence long enough to guarantee an established policy for the school, or even to see its first class graduate.

With the life of the commission extended to ten years, it is argued that the schools would by that time be fully developed. The bill has passed the Senate in its present form, but its opponents have strong hope that it will be so amended when it comes up in the House as to provide for a longer term.

The Senate, it is believed, would concur in such an amendment.

The hearing will be held in room No. 147. It will be the last opportunity this year to urge upon the Legislature the importance of industrial education.

COUNTESS GLADYS ADMIRED AT DINNER

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 14.—The Countess Szechenyi, the former Gladys Vanderbilt of New York, sumptuously gowned and wearing magnificent diamonds, was universally admired last night at the dinner given by the grand marshal of the Hungarian court, Count Louis Apponyi von Nagy Appony, in honor of Sir Edward Goschen, British Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, and the German Ambassador, Herr von Tschirsky. There were many noted guests present.

THE "TOUCH" THAT KILLS LOVE

"The man that borrows from a woman whose love for him makes it hard to say 'no' is an unspeakable cad"

By DOROTHY DIX

DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG working girl, who is engaged to a man with whom she says she is very much in love, writes to me in regard to the propriety of lending the aforesaid man money.

She says that the man is at present out of a job, but that he lives with his parents, who are able to support him, so he is not in need. Nevertheless, he continually borrows small sums of money from her.

My advice to this young woman is to put a safety lock on her pocketbook and forget the combination when this deadbeat youth comes around.

She might even do better than this and stop his coming around at all, to the advantage of her future happiness; for the man who will graft upon the hard earnings of a poor working girl, unless he is reduced to the very last extremity of want, has a soul no bigger than a mustard seed, and will make one of the grinding husbands who enslave their wives and make their every hour bitter.

Will Never Mix

There is an old proverb to the effect that when you lend money to your friend you lose your friend and your money both; and this is doubly true when the friend is a man and the lender a woman.

It is truly true when love enters into the transaction, for love and borrowing no more mix than do oil and water; and when Cupid is asked to become a bill collector he simply picks up his darts and hikes out for a more congenial environment.

Of course in these days when women are becoming captainesses of industry there are circumstances under which a man need no more hesitate to apply to a woman for a loan than to a man friend.

That is business, pure and simple. It is done on a business basis, and it is as different as possible from the holding up of a woman for little sums, which are great sums to her, which are extorted from her in the name of love, and which the man knows he never intends to repay.

Every man who knows a working girl knows how pitifully hard her money is earned. He knows how small is her salary, how many calls there are upon her meagre purse.

He knows how many hours of standing behind a counter, or bending over a sewing machine or typewriter, every dollar represents. He knows that often and often it is literally blood money, paid for with anguish of body incredible.

He knows that the saving of every penny represents the crucifixion of a thousand little feminine tastes and desires, and often a heroic sacrifice of even the very necessities of life.

He knows that the working girl does not generally have even the poor pittance that she earns, but that her hungry family snatches it from her when her hand has scarcely had time to close upon it.

Unspeakable Cad

Knowing all this, the man who borrows from a working girl—who takes her little from her—is an unspeakable cad without an element of manliness in him.

If he had one spark of real affection or real chivalry for the woman he professes to love, he would break rocks on the street, or he would starve to death, rather than take one penny from her. Or, if he must beg, he would panhandle at a street corner where people pass who are able to give, if they want to, to an able-bodied man.

Never, never, never would he sponge upon the woman whose love for him makes it so hard for her to say "no."

When nature made man bigger and stronger and huskier than woman, it intended that the man should provide for the woman, and not the woman for the man; and when we reverse this process we upset the law of creation, and trouble follows.

It degrades a man in his own eyes and in the woman's eyes for him to take money from her, especially the money that she has won by hard labor and self-denial while he has idly loafed.

Imagine Romeo

Under the circumstances it is not possible that there should be a continuance of the right sort of affection between them. Romance is slain the moment borrowing begins.

Who can imagine Romeo breaking off in the midst of his impassioned vows of devotion to ask Juliet if she couldn't lend him seventy-five cents; or Juliet pausing in her declaration that she could die for him to demand of Romeo if he couldn't let her have that five dollars she lent him week before last?

There's bound to be a little coolness between creditor and debtor, and this relationship is intensified, not mitigated, when the party of the first part is engaged to the party of the second part. Those who owe us and won't pay are always persona non grata.

So despicable is the man who, vampire-like, lives upon the little wages of working women that one might think that there would be few such degenerates. This is not the case, however.

Witshoff, the bigamist, who was recently convicted of marrying innumerable women for their money, showed how easy it was to prey upon these unsuspecting victims. He said that all a man had to do to get a woman's savings was to make love to her. That seemed to hypnotize her so that she took leave of her judgment and good sense, and she likewise bade goodby to her cash.

Same as Giving

Apparently this is true, for we all know of many cases where rich girls have blindly turned over their fortunes to the men who married them for their money, and every day we see the spectacle of working girls denying themselves every luxury to give or lend—and it's the same thing, for they seldom see their coin again—their poor earnings to some worthless creature in trousers to whom they are engaged.

To these women, rich and poor, I say with all the emphasis of which I am capable, don't do it, girls. If the man is the right sort of a man, he isn't asking you for money.

If you have money of your own, he wants it settled on you, so that he can have the blessed satisfaction of knowing that the woman he loves is protected from poverty.

If you are a poor girl, he would sooner take the pennies off a dead man's eyes, or rob a child of its candy money, than take one dollar that those dear, patient hands of yours have earned.

I say again that the right kind of a man won't take your money, and you should see that the wrong sort of a man doesn't get it.

If you lend money to the man to whom you are engaged, you lose your respect for him, you lose your love, you lose your lover and you lose your money. The last of which is most important, for seventy-five cents is a lot better worth having than such a man. It's more than he's worth.

The Hats We Women Wear

Small Wonder That We Poke Fun at Recent Styles

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT a merry time the men are having over our hats, girls!

Editors and cartoonists are especially interested in them, and any decoration the milliners leave off the gentlemen, in imagination, carefully add on.

Any one reading about the average woman's hat would think it was a cross between a barnyard, a fruit orchard and a flower garden.

But joking aside, some of the hats are grotesque. There is no denying that.

As for the "Merry Widow," I think if they called it the "Merry Cartwheel" it would be more appropriate.

I wonder when women will learn that any extreme article of wearing apparel is neither good taste nor good style.

To be well dressed the entire costume must be harmonious. No special article must obtrude itself.

Simply Ridiculous

THE sight of a small woman in high heeled shoes, a skirt several inches above her ankles and a hat as big as an umbrella is ridiculous; that's all.

I don't wonder that the men make fun of us. They would be blind indeed not to see the absurdity of our Spring costumes.

We have apparently gone crazy on the hat question. Nothing is too large nor too decorative.

It has come to the point where the hats actually interfere with the comfort of passengers in street cars or trains.

Every time you turn your head you are pricked in the face by a bristling quill or a tuft of spiky grasses.

You don't see the really well-dressed fashionable woman wearing an extreme hat. She chooses something that will not be duplicated on every second woman she meets.

Don't Be Conspicuous

JUST bear in mind, girls, that you can be prettily and stylishly dressed without making yourself conspicuous.

Do not go to business looking as though you were dressing for a garden party or a reception.

You will never look well dressed as long as you pile on a mass of varying colors and cheap finery.

Far better to wear a plain, good-looking suit than a cheap and ornate one.

This is an old subject of discussion, but it bears repetition.

If you dress to please men, you will dress simply, for few men admire fussy fashions.

A compliment from the man she cares most for is very sweet in the ears of any girl, and the way to win his approval on the dress question is never to wear conspicuous clothes of any sort.

Think this over, my girls, before you buy another hat.

ENGLISH MUSTARD

IN answer to "Louise D." here is a good recipe for English mustard: allow to one heaping teaspoon of dry mustard a teaspoon of salad oil, one saltspoon of sugar, one saltspoon of salt, ten drops of onion juice and one teaspoon Tarragon vinegar. Stir to a smooth cream. This is good for months in corked bottle.

MRS. A. C. GREENE.

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS

SELECT one medium sized pineapple. Slice and cut in small pieces. Now sift together one and a third cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, one quarter teaspoon of salt, a grating of nutmeg; then beat into this two-thirds cup milk and one egg. When a smooth batter has been made add the pineapple. Dip into hot, deep fat a quantity of batter sufficient to make a fritter about the size of an egg. Serve with sauce.

ORANGE BASKETS.

Soak one-half box gelatine in cup of cold water for one-half hour. Scoop out pulps of six large oranges (those with very tough skins are the best), having first cut the skin low in form of a basket, leaving a thin strip for handle across the top. Add to the gelatine the strained juice of the oranges and one cupful sugar. Keep on ice until cold. Fill the baskets with this mixture and serve with whipped cream.

COFFEE CUSTARD

GRIND two ounces of fresh roasted coffee, add one cup of boiling milk and set in a warm place for forty minutes. Strain it, then mix in the ordinary way with sufficient milk and eggs to make one quart of custard, and pour in cups. Bake these in a pan of water very carefully and serve cold. This is a very old French recipe.

MOCK CHERRY PIE

TWO cups of cranberries cut in halves and rinsed in cold water to remove seeds, one cups of raisins cut in halves, two cups of sugar, one tablespoon flour, one cup of boiling water, two teaspoons vanilla. Mix the flour and sugar, add the boiling water and the other ingredients. This makes two large pies.

Care of Plants and Ferns

THE fault which perhaps causes more deaths among palms and ferns, and, in fact, all growing plants or flowers that are kept in jardinieres, is that the water which drains through the earth and the hole in the earthenware jar is allowed to remain in the jardinieres until often enough has accumulated for the plant to be standing continually soaking in the water from which it has already derived all the nutriment it required.

After the plant has been fed the water should be allowed to drain through the earth, and at the end of about fifteen minutes the jardiniere should be carefully emptied and dried. If this is attended to regularly there will be little danger of the plant not thriving.

A rubber plant or any palm with leaves of sufficient size should be washed off occasionally with lukewarm water and just a little soapsuds to prevent the spread of any scale or disease which may have attacked it. Each leaf and stem should be gone over with a clean rag. Too cold water must never be used, but warm water is also fatal, and the best way to obtain satisfactory results with the plant is by drawing a sufficient amount of water over night so that it will thus derive the exact temperature of the room in which the plant lives.

If the plant seems to be hopelessly "sick" it may be relieved by repotting. The plant is tenderly removed from the pot, the earth all shaken off, and then new soil carefully placed about the roots, the plant replaced in the pot, and the earth not too plentifully watered, and then not watered again for two or three days. The soil may have been poisoned, and in the new, healthy earth it may take on a new lease of life. The experiment is certainly worth while trying.

Tomorrow's Best Bargains

Money-Savers for Thrifty Shoppers Selected by an Expert

FILENE'S WILL OFFER as a Friday "special" a lot of about sixty waists made in different styles that formerly sold for $1 and $1.50, reduced to 35 cents. In this lot will be found smart tailored waists, with soft or laundered cuffs, and a variety of hamburg and lace trimmed lawn waists, in most every size. These are rare bargains, but as the quantity is limited, early shopping is advisable.

IN THE HAIR GOODS DEPARTMENT at James A. Houston's you will find a bargain in hair puffs to-morrow, when a lot of regular 75-cent and $1 goods will be placed on sale for 50 cents. These goods come with four or six puffs, and may be had in black, blonde and all shades of brown. At this price these ought to sell quickly, as they are of very good quality.

FOR A ONE DAY'S SALE at Shepard Norwell's a special lot of men's cotton lisle hose, made with spliced heel and double sole and toe, that always sell for 25 cents a pair, will be on sale for 19 cents, or three pairs for 50 cents. These were considered excellent hose at the former price, and will be sold at this reduced price on Friday only.

YOU WILL FIND EXCEPTIONALLY good drawers at Gilchrist's to-morrow for 49 cents, made in two different styles, one of nainsook with deep cluny lace ruffle open at sides, and a fine cambric with full umbrella ruffle with deep hamburg trimming. These are rare bargains, and may be had in all sizes.

AN ASSORTMENT OF GILT PHOTO frames, with metal backs, that always sell for 50 cents, will be offered for one day's sale at Vorenberg's Novelty Store on Winter street at 35 cents each. These frames come in square and oval shape in a variety of pretty designs, and are the regulation sizes.

TO-MORROW AT J. G. Small's you will find a lot of sample waists in different styles ranging in prices from $7.50 to $13.50 that have been marked to $4.98. In this lot are sheer batiste, handkerchief linens and fine lawns, trimmed with dainty laces and hand embroidery. This is an opportunity to purchase a beautiful lingerie waist at half price and less.

THE BOSTON DEPARTMENT STORE will sell to-morrow their regular 49-cent boy's Russian blouse at 33 cents as a "special." These blouses are made of percale, ginghams and fancy madras, in plain and neat striped effects, for the boy from three years to nine years, and will be found very good values.

AT CONRAD'S THERE WILL be placed on sale about fifty little tub dresses in sizes from five years to fourteen years, that have just been reduced from $1.50 to sell Friday for 75 cents. These are smart little dresses for the small girl, are made of checked percales and ginghams in French waist style with full plaited skirt, in three different models.

AT HOUGHTON & DUTTON'S a lot of the popular pony coats that have been selling for $12 will be offered to BOSTON AMERICAN readers on Friday for $9.98. These coats are made in two different braid patterns with butterfly sleeve and are lined throughout with heavy taffeta silk. This reduced price is for one day only.

THE LOVE KNOT

A Famous Old Poem Illustrated by Nell Brinkley

She tied her raven ringlets in.

Kissed her mouth and dimpled chin.

TYING her bonnet under her chin,
She tied her raven ringlets in;
But not alone in the silken snare
Did she catch her lovely, floating hair;
But, tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied a young man's heart within.

THEY were strolling together up the hill,
Where the wind comes blowing merry and chill,
And it blew the curls, a frolicsome race,
All over the happy, peach-colored face;
Till, scolding and laughing, she tied them in,
Under her beautiful, dimpled chin.

AND it blew a color as bright as the bloom
Of the pinkest fuchsia's tossing plume
All over the cheeks of the prettiest girl
That ever imprisoned a romping curl,
Or, in tying a bonnet under her chin,
Tied a young man's heart within.

STEEPER and steeper grew the hill;
Madder, merrier, chillier still
The western wind blew down, and played
The wildest tricks with the little maid,
As, tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied a young man's heart within.

O WESTERN wind! do you think it was fair
To play such tricks with her floating hair?
To gladly, gleefully do your best
To blow her against the young man's breast,
Where he as gladly folded her in,
And kissed her mouth and dimpled chin?

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

BUNION TROUBLE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please tell me how to get rid of bunions? DAILY READER.

ADVICE on the subject has appeared since the date of your letter, but if you have not seen it, write again and mention that fact, when I will repeat the instructions for you.

CLEANSE WITH CREAM

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Kindly tell me if a good cream takes the natural oil out of one's skin. I am eighteen years old and have a good complexion, but it is rather dry at times. Am I too young to use cream. Also tell me if warm or cold water is best for my skin.
M. N.

THE condition of the skin and not the age determines the advisability of using cream. Indeed, if you use a cleansing cream instead of so much soap and water in your youth, you will need less in the way of patching up later. Use cold water to dash on the face after cleansing it with cream. This helps to keep the flesh firm and hard and less susceptible to wrinkles.

REDUCE LARGE PORE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Some time ago in trying to remove a blackhead on the bridge of my nose I punctured the skin, causing it to bleed. It has long since healed, leaving a small hole about the size of a pinhead. Please tell me how to remove this.
READER.

MASSAGE it with a good cream, bathe it in alcohol and put a few drops of benzoin in the water with which you bathe the face. Avoid the use of hot water on it, as that has a tendency to enlarge the pores. Cold water has the opposite effect.

VASELINE FOR LASHES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you kindly tell me of something which will make my eyelashes grow long and heavy? They seem to have fallen out since I started to use vaseline, which made my eyebrows heavy and long. DOLLY GREY.

WHY not use the vaseline since you had such success with it on the brows? Be careful not to get any of it in the eyes, but apply it with a tiny camel's hair brush.

IRRITATED EYES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please state what I shall do for my eyes? They are very red inside and running all the time.
G. M.

BATHE them with a 20 per cent solution of boracic acid several times a day and bind them up at night with a folded linen wet cloth, wet with diluted witch hazel. If this does not cure them, go to an oculist and have the eyes examined. You may need glasses, and the strain of doing without them may cause all the discomfort.

American Short Story

False to Her Colors—By Mary Millard

IN answer to my knock a low-toned and sweet voice said, "Come in."

I obeyed, and found myself in the studio of a sculptress.

She was young and handsome, with a broad brow, a head of exquisite shape and an abundance of sunny brown hair dressed high in a careless fashion, which revealed the full beauty of the rounded curves of cheek and throat.

"Dear me," I said to myself. "I have met several charming 'bachelor maids,' but hidden away here is the flower of the flock."

The artist came forward and shook hands, and I noticed that, although her lips smiled, her sweet eyes remained sad.

"Art for art's sake is not enough in this case," was the thought that occurred to me as I took the seat she offered and glanced around me at her work.

She had been busy, when I interrupted her, upon the kneeling figure of a little child; it was pretty, very pretty, but there was nothing original or striking about it.

"You have come from the Lambent Fame, have you not?" she said. "The editor wrote to me."

The paper she mentioned was very keen upon exploiting artistic work done by women, and I had been commissioned to write about that "rising young sculptress, Miss Isobel Le Marrier," and to arrange with her to have her studio, herself and the subject upon which she was engaged at the moment photographed for reproduction in the paper.

I explained my errand, but all she said was "I was just going to make tea for myself. You will join me, I hope, and then we can talk things over."

"Have you been working long at your beautiful art?" I inquired, as we were enjoying our tea.

"About two years—yes, exactly two years. I was always fond of it, but it was—circumstances"—she hesitated over the word—"that induced me to take it up professionally. I did so long to be independent!"

Here it was again—the desire of the woman for freedom! I began to despair of meeting the girl who was anxious for a strong arm to lean upon!

"And has independence brought you all the delights that you anticipated?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; I am very happy," she answered, a little too glibly and emphatically, I thought. "I work very hard and I am still studying. I have a dear old mother and an elder sister, who live in the country, but when I go to see them they try to persuade me to give it all up and to do—other things; but when I was quite young I vowed that no one should come between me and my art. You understand, do you not? and you can say all that in your article, if you like. I do not see why women should not be as obstinate as men."

"Obstinate"

"Sometimes they are more obstinate," I said.

I was longing to ask about the "other things" that her mother and sister wanted Isobel to do. That "things" should not have been put in the plural I was convinced, but then, as I have been told often, I am a very "cocksure" person, and as often wrong as right.

When we had finished our tea I went round the studio and examined the half-finished studies that were on view. Then presently I took a photograph from the mantelpiece.

"And who is this?" I said.

"That is mother," she answered, with such a tender note in her soft voice.

"And this is your sister, of course?" I said, taking up another portrait.

"Yes," she said again.

"And your brother?" I went on, as I took up a photograph of a handsome and well-set-up young man.

She was silent, and as I turned to look at her a deep flush rose to her face, but she said, without embarrassment: "I have no brother. That is a man I used to know." Then she added, with unnecessary haste: "He does not care for art or artists," and to myself I said, as I put the photograph back upon the mantel place:

"I wonder if he is the 'other thing' that has added one more to the ranks of the bachelor maids?"

"I wish you would not write anything about me," the girl said presently. "I am not good enough. Wait until I become famous—if I ever do," she added wistfully.

"I am going to send that," pointing to the figure of the kneeling child, "to the academy next Spring," she went on. "But it will not get in. It is too conventional and commonplace."

"But they like pretty exhibits at the academy," I said, "and your work is very sweet."

"If that is all you can say, the best thing I can do is to hide it out of sight," and she flung a cover over the figure as she spoke, and, before she seated herself again, I noticed that she had turned the portrait of the good looking man with its face to the wall.

"Poor fellow!" I said to myself. "What has he done?" Then, after a little more chat, I rose to say good-by.

"I do not feel very bright to-day," she said. "But please come and see me again. I should like to hear what you thought of the lecture."

A Message

A few days later I heard unexpectedly a few particulars about the young artist. She had been engaged to a man who was devoted to her, but although she was fond of him, she was much fonder, apparently, of her art, and it offended her deeply when he told her that she would never do anything great, and also that, when she was his wife, he would not allow her to have a studio or a latchkey.

"He might have left her the key," my informant added, "but Isobel declared that no man should have the power to say that she must not do this or that; so the engagement was broken off—she keeps on her studio and she wears her Yale latchkey hanging to a bracelet upon her wrist, and tries very hard to pose as an emancipated woman. The pair never meet. He says that all women are vain and fickle, and spends his time traveling. Even the charming flat that he furnished for her is shut up, and he refuses to let it."

I met Isobel once or twice during the next twelve months, but, although we remained very friendly, she did not confide in me. I was surprised, therefore, to get a note from her one morning by a boy messenger, to say that the studio was let, that she was going abroad immediately, and would I come over to tea the same afternoon.

I sent back the message "With pleasure," but this time no sweet voice responded to my knock; so, without knocking again, I went in, but when I got round the screen which shut off the door I could not suppress a gasp of surprise, for, standing in the middle of the room, in an attitude which recalled Leighton's beautiful picture, "Wedded," were Isobel and the original of the portrait which had been turned face to the wall.

They did not see me, or they ignored my interruption, and I remained in silent admiration of the charming "Living Picture."

"Sweetheart!" I heard him murmur tenderly, as he kissed her hair. Then he leaned over her shoulder and took something from the hand which she raised to meet him.

At the same moment she caught sight of me, and, slipping from the man's embrace, she ran to meet me.

"He has got it!" she cried. "I have given it up!" Her exuberance scarcely indicated a recent surrender of anything.

"What?" I asked, but I had guessed already.

"This," the masterful creature answered, as he held up a latchkey.

"Dear me!" I said. "What a fuss about a wretched latchkey. If that were all you had got you would not look so delighted."

His air of triumph exasperated me.

"But it is something more than the loot of the victor," said Isobel. "It is the proof that I am a renegade and 'myself' no longer. My husband and I are one—we were married this morning."

HINTS AND HELPS

IN warm weather put eggs in cold water and they will froth better.

* * *

Always use lard to grease your cake pans, as the salt in the butter causes it to stick to the pans.

* * *

Keep cakes in the cellar in a tin box, with two or three apples in to keep them moist.

* * *

When you want to put sugar and spice on them lay them on the board and roll over.

* * *

Never try to ice a cake hot, and let layer cakes get nearly cold before putting together.

* * *

All lard to fry fritters and doughnuts must be very, very hot before putting must be very, very hot before putting in the batter.

The Fat Wife vs. Hubby's Affinity

If fat wives will please notice, the ladies on whom their husbands' eyes linger longest are usually of the willowy variety. However, tears, etc., will do no good. Be observing and profit by your observation. Be trim yourself. You can.

My plan does not require of you any extra exertions nor demand change of any kind in your ordinary diet. All you must do is get ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ oz. Sirup Simplex from your druggist, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. That's all. Simple, isn't it?

The results are splendid. Some people have lost as much as a pound a day or more. That is losing one's excess flesh fast enough. Nevertheless, this harmless, inexpensive mixture does not cause wrinkles or disturb the stomach, but acts rather as an invigorator, improving the complexion and general health.

The above receipt is very popular, but for the many who prefer a remedy in tablet form the Marmola Co., of Detroit, Mich., have condensed its full strength into an elegant Prescription tablet. These Marmola tablets may be obtained from any good pharmacist or from the company direct, and, as they are packed in extra large cases, are not only the most widely used fat-reducing tablet your druggist has, but, also, the least expensive.

LIVERMORE IS HAILED AS "COTTON KING"

Former Boston Man Plays Havoc with the Bears, Cornering July Option.

MAKES $500,000 PROFIT

NEW YORK, May 14.—In the sensational rise in July cotton in the last few days, amounting to 190 points or $9.50 a bale, it has become known that a new "cotton king" has arisen in the financial world, one whose operations have played havoc with the bears in the cotton pit and have assisted in cornering the July option.

J. L. Livermore's name was on the lips of everyone in the cotton market yesterday as the price of July, which has been steadily soaring, shot up from $9.40 a hundred pounds to $9.90, a gain of $2.50 a bale.

As the price of the staple continued to mount the fear-stricken men who had sold July short contracts began to say that the market for July cotton was cornered, and that a new Napoleon of the cotton market had arisen and was already beginning to dictate terms.

Since April 28, when July cotton sold at 8.20 cents a pound, the lowest in five years, Mr. Livermore has been steadily accumulating contracts deliverable next July. It is now estimated that he has made a profit of $500,000 in the last two weeks. He stands to make millions more if his plans do not miscarry, but he says there is no prearranged deal, so far as he knows, to corner July cotton.

"I am not creating a corner in the July cotton market," Mr. Livermore told a reporter. "The market has simply cornered itself. The enormous advance in the last few days has been the result of buying by persons who had sold cotton that they did not own.

"I discovered the unreasonableness of the cotton situation two or three weeks ago, when I saw that spot cotton in the South was selling about $10 a bale higher than in the option market in New York. I then began to accumulate July cotton. Others did the same. The old situation could not continue very long, and now there is a scramble from all sorts of interests, spot dealers, mills, spinners and shorts, to get July cotton. I never saw a market corner itself as prettily as this July market has done.

"I want to go on record as saying I am not running a corner. I will never attempt it. In the first place, I haven't got money. I intend to leave the financing of corners to spot interests if they desire. They can get the money from the banks to finance heavy accumulations, but speculators cannot."

FORTUNE FOR DR. GREGG, ONCE DISINHERITED

Divine Whose Acceptance of Park Street Pulpit Cost Him Thousands Gets a Million.

The Rev. Dr. David Gregg, who accepted the pastorate of the Park Street Church twenty years ago at the cost of a great fortune, has become heir to half of the fortune left by his mother. He was cut off in the will of his father, a millionaire Pittsburg real estate man, because he accepted a call to the Boston pulpit.

Dr. Gregg's father did not wish his gifted son to leave the West Twenty-third Street Church in New York, which was of the old Covenanter school of theology, and go to the Park Street Church, which was more liberal. When the father died, he left all his property to his widow and his other son, except one lot of land in Pittsburg, then valued at $7,000, which the clergyman's brother subsequently sold for the divine for $150,000.

But Dr. Gregg is now to be put in possession of a large part of his father's wealth. Mrs. Margaret Gregg, his mother, left an estate amounting to $1,500,000 and it is almost all bequeathed to Dr. Gregg and his brother. The clergyman's share is estimated at nearly $750,000.

DR. MANN NAMED LIBRARY TRUSTEE

Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., rector of Trinity Church, was to-day named by Mayor Hibbard as a trustee of the public library to succeed Rev. James De Normandie, who resigned last week. Dr. Mann's appointment is for the term ending April 30, 1910.

PROCTOR, FUGITIVE FOR YEAR, STILL DEFIES LAW

Belated Action of Police Permits Lodge's Former Secretary to Escape Justice.

One year ago to-day, May 14, 1907, the Supreme Court of Massachusetts decided that Robert G. Proctor, former secretary to United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, should serve the ten months sentence of imprisonment in the House of Correction which Judge DeCourcy of the Superior Court had imposed July 2, 1906.

Proctor has not served a day of his sentence. His cash bail of $500 has been declared forfeited and Proctor is in parts unknown. He has been heard from in Goldfield, Omaha, Washington and Baltimore, but no general police notification has been sent from the Boston police for his apprehension. Chief Inspector Watts believes that Proctor is now in France.

Belated Police Notice.

Last Summer Proctor was in Baltimore and Washington enjoying himself in his familiar haunts. Chief of Police Sylvester of Washington and City Marshal Farnan of Baltimore had no notification in any form that the dashing secretary of Senator Lodge was wanted in Massachusetts as a fugitive from justice until three months after the decision of the Supreme Court.

It was August 19 before the police authorities of Boston, to whom had been given a default warrant calling for the apprehension of Proctor, notified the Washington and Baltimore authorities that the former secretary was "wanted" here.

Proctor for thirteen years was the private secretary of Senator Lodge. He was convicted in the Superior Court, July 2, 1906, of the larceny of $225 from John G. Bestgen of Quincy. The evidence in court showed that Bestgen wanted to go as consul to Selengen, Germany. He sought the assistance of Senator Lodge.

Campaign Contribution.

In seeking interviews with the senior Senator, Bestgen met Proctor. Understanding that a contribution to the Republican campaign fund would help him in his quest for the consulate and believing, as he claimed, that a respectable donation to the G. O. P. fund would "land" him, Bestgen on October 17, 1904, gave $225 to Proctor. The transaction occurred at the headquarters of the Republican State Committee where Proctor was making his headquarters daily prior to the Presidential election.

Bestgen not only failed to secure the consulship, but he found no mention of his $225 in the return of campaign receipts demanded by the law. Bestgen, after months went by and with no consulate coming, saw Proctor, who declared that the money had been turned over to a proper officer of the Republican State committee.

In April, 1906, Bestgen told his story to District Attorney Moran and an indictment for larceny followed. Proctor was convicted in the Superior Court before Judge DeCourcy, and was sentenced to serve ten months in the house of correction. Officers of the Republican State committee testified at the trial that Proctor had made no return to them of money received from Bestgen.

Get Stay of Sentence.

Execution of sentence was stayed against Proctor until the Supreme Court could pass upon the evidence, Herbert Parker and John W. McAnarney, his counsel, setting forth that the verdict of "guilty" was against the law and the evidence. Surveyor of the Port J. J. McCarthy and ex-Senator Daniel W. Lane furnished bail in five crisp $100 bills for Proctor.

Since the decision of the Supreme Court Proctor has not been heard of officially in Boston. He was ordered to appear in court May 20, last year, to have his sentence reaffirmed, but failed to do so and his counsel admitted that they had heard nothing recent from him. Given a week's grace he again failed to appear. Then a default warrant was issued and given to the Boston police. Proctor has escaped the default warrant as easily as he slid through the meshes of Massachusetts law spread for him before.

Hungry Man is Jailed.

Senator Lodge has discharged him from his employ and he has lost also his place upon the Philippine Islands Commission. Up to date that has been his only punishment for his trangression of Massachusetts law.

The law of Massachusetts, a week ago, sent a hungry man to Deer Island for three months because he stole a loaf of bread. Police and counsel pursued the starving petty thief, and the law which provides imprisonment for larceny sent him to prison.

PROCTOR AND THE LAW

APRIL 2, 1906.—District Attorney Moran, at State House, makes verbal charges involving larceny of campaign funds against Proctor.

APRIL 3.—Proctor, in Washington, threatens to sue Moran for libel. Declares that he will hurry home and begin suit.

APRIL 7.—Boston police searching hotels and theatres for Proctor.

APRIL 8.—Suffolk Grand Jury reports an indictment against Proctor.

APRIL 9.—Proctor gives himself up to police at headquarters and pleads "not guilty" before Judge Bond. Released on $500 bail.

APRIL 17.—Proctor resigns as secretary to Senator Lodge.

JUNE 26.—Proctor's trial opens before Judge DeCourcey. Is defended by Herbert Parker and John A. McAnarney.

JULY 2.—Proctor found guilty and sentenced to ten months in the House of Correction. His counsel files exceptions.

DECEMBER 29.—Judge DeCourcey allows Proctor's bill of exceptions.

MARCH 11, 1907.—Proctor's exceptions argued before the full bench of the Supreme Court.

MAY 14.—Supreme Court decides against Proctor. Declares verdict was in accordance with law and evidence.

MAY 15.—Proctor closes up his residence, No. 1,011 Monroe street, Washington, and leaves the capital.

MAY 20.—Proctor ordered called in Superior Court for affirmation of sentence. Fails to appear. Is given one week of grace.

MAY 27.—Proctor again defaults appearance in court, and a fugitive default warrant is issued. His bail is forfeited.

MAY 14, 1908.—Proctor still missing.

PLAN CONCERT IN DORCHESTER FOR FIRE FUND

Dorchester society is looking forward with deep interest to the concert and entertainment in aid of the Chelsea fire sufferers to be given under the auspices of the Harvard Improvement Association and Men's League of Harvard Church, Dorchester, in the Oliver Wendell Holmes School hall on Tuesday evening, May 19.

Included in the concert programme will be vocal and musical selections by some of the best known artists in Greater Boston. They are Miss Katherine Crockett, soprano; Mrs. Genevieve Moffotte Fenno, contralto; Miss Ethel Mildred Frank, soprano; Mrs. Eloise Wright, contralto; Miss Mollie C. Gallagher, violinist; Professor Charles T. Grilley, elocutionist and impersonator; George Deane, tenor soloist; Harry L. Hearts, musician and composer; William H. Minot, whistling soloist, and Professor John A. O'Shea, pianist and accompanist.

Two noted comedians from Keith's Theatre will also be present through the kindness of Manager John H. McCarron. The affair will be managed by Brenton H. MacCurdy, chairman of the joint committee, and William D. McKissick, secretary.

SOUL MATE SENDS AFFINITY BACK TO WIFE

NEW YORK, May 14.—That "soul mating" is not necessarily a permanent institution was proved to-day by Mrs. Ella St. Claire Stoddard, the Brooklyn woman, who not long ago publicly admitted that George J. Hermann, a rich Borough Park builder, was her "really and truly" affinity. Hermann was so convinced that they were integral parts of the same spirit, that he addressed her as "Cosmos," the same, roughly interpreted, meaning "all the world."

Mrs. Stoddard announced to-day that she had sent her affinity back to his wife. "He lied to me," she declared, "and I found that his love wasn't spiritual, after all."

It seems, according to the ex-soul mate's sorrowful tale, that Hermann was not so fond of his "Cosmos" as he has made her believe.

"Why, he told me he hated his wife—despised her and couldn't live with her," Mrs. Stoddard said, "and then I find that he has been going to her house and having meals with her in the friendliest fashion."

Since dining with one's wife apparently kills the affinity business Mrs. Stoddard has indignantly told Hermann to go back to Mrs. Hermann. She, at the same time, will re-establish friendly relations with her husband, Captain Stoddard.

TWO HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

Charged with the larceny of $360 from Mrs. Rose Spungen, money she got from an insurance company after her home was burned in the Chelsea fire, Louis Minskey and Barris Paskin of Boston were to-day held in $700 each for the Grand Jury by Judge Duss in the Municipal Court.

It was testified that Minskey volunteered to have Mrs. Spungen's check cashed. He had no money and took it to Paskin, who had a bank account. Paskin, it was testified, deposited the check with his own account. Mrs. Spungen asked Minskey for the money and he told her that Paskin had deposited it. It was related that she then saw Paskin and he told her where the money was, and she went to the bank, but could not draw the cash without an order from Paskin. Then, it was testified, she went back to Paskin and he told her Minskey had the money, but that he said he didn't have it.

"The devil himself designed women's fashions!" So declares the Rev. Dr. Bass of St. Louis, as he looks about him and gazes upon the Merry Widow hat, the Serpentine Silhouette, etc. See next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

SEEK RELATIVES OF GEORGE ABERNATHY

The Boston police are asked to locate relatives in Boston of George Abernathy, who died suddenly in East Syracuse, N. Y., two weeks ago, and who is thought to be a Boston man. The body is now held at the Syracuse Medical College. The man was about fifty years old and of educated appearance.

STORM FATAL TO AGED MAN

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, May 14.—Eighty-five years of age and feeble, Orrin Bradford Roberts, after wandering a mile from home, sought shelter from the storm last night in the cellar of a vacant tenement at No. 41 Rockaway street, and to-day was found dying there by a neighbor who heard his groans. He died while awaiting the arrival of an ambulance to take him to a hospital.

Roberts left the home of his daughter, Mrs. Stewart, at No. 250 Broadway, early in the evening. He said he was going for a walk to the corner. Failing to return, the family instituted a search, but could find no trace of him.

Old age and exposure were attributed by the medical examiner as the cause of death.

Most remarkable snake on earth. Making the deadly lancehead give up his venom, which cures insanity, described by the man who squeezed the reptile. See next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

RUN OF TYPHOID AT PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, May 14.—Eighty cases of typhoid fever in sixty families is the record of the epidemic at the office of the superintendent of health. Fifteen cases were reported yesterday.

Vice-President Albert T. Potter of the Rhode Island Company was reported to be on the sick list, and it is believed that his illness may prove to be typhoid fever.

Among the other victims of the disease are Rev. James C. Walsh, pastor of St. Michael's Church, and his assistant, Rev. Thomas A. Coffey.

LOGUE SCORES DIVORCE EVIL

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 14.—Cardinal Logue of Ireland is visiting this city to-day. He said Ireland would never be satisfied until her destinies were in her own hands.

"Ireland is not satisfied and has no right to be with present conditions or present concessions," said the cardinal.

"What is the prospect as to home rule?" he was asked.

"It is impossible to tell. It may be brought about in a year or two; it may take many years."

Asked what he regarded as the blot on the American escutcheon insofar as he had opportunity to judge, he replied:

"The divorce evil is the one great blot and calls for radical reform for the preservation of the family which is the foundation of the State."

Written by the Queen of Sheba herself. Marvellously interesting manuscript found, which narrates in detail the georgeous Ethiopian Queen's visit to King Solomon. See next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

LIGHTSHIP 93 IS LAUNCHED

Lightship No. 93, the last of four recently built for the government at Quincy, was successfully launched in private to-day at the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. Miss Alice Keith Prescott of Quincy acted as sponsor. Her sister lightships are Nos. 90, 91 and 92. No. 93 has just had her trial trip and all four will be at once placed in commission at different Atlantic stations.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

TIGERS GET BY WITH USE OF ANCIENT TRICK

That frappe, moss-covered, frayed edge antiquated, "hidden ball" trick is a specialty of the Detroit club and has been ever since Coughlin joined the team. The captain of the Tigers is a great believer in the play, and although no other team in the world attempts it these days, except perhaps, some school boy nine, the Tigers still cherish it as an old lady cherishes a rare bit of china.

The "hidden ball" trick isn't baseball. It's a childish play, but if opposing teams are foolish enough to be a victim of it they have only themselves to blame.

American League clubs ought, by this time to be "on" to this purlie specialty of the Tigers, but the Red Sox were caught hands down in the second game.

With the bases full in the third inning and the Red Sox in the throes of a fine batting rally, Schaefer tried the old chestnut, but he was discovered and had to produce the ball.

Little Mack then clouted the ball to deep left for three bases, clearing the sacks. It was relayed back to Captain Bill Coughlin, who deftly tucked it in his armpit as Amby stood panting on third base.

Mullin stepped in the box and the other Detroit players took their regular positions. Captain Bill bit off a fresh chew of tobacco and strolling up to Amby remarked:

"That was a nice hit, Mac. I see you are leading the team with the stick."

"Yes, I get in a lucky swipe, now and then," replied McConnell modestly.

"Well, I'm glad to see a young fellow like you make good, and I hope——"

At this stage of the conversation McConnell spat on his hands and moved off the bag. In a twinkling Captain Bill whipped the ball from under his arm and tagged the little Boston player. Silk O'Loughlin waved him out and Amby disconsolately made his way to the bench.

It might not be a bad idea for the Red Sox to keep their eyes on the ball while the Tigers are in town.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

"Silk" slipped a cog in declaring McConnell out on his bunt in the first inning. Little Mac not only beat the throw, but Rossman's foot was off the bag.

It looked like sure runs for Boston at the start. Thoney, however, spoiled the chance by being caught off third. He took too big a lead when Mullen pitched the ball.

The Providence kids, Lord and McConnell, made a bad mess of things in the second. Their fumbles filled the bags.

The Red Sox kicked for a triple play in the second and O'Loughlin stood quite an argument, but he would not allow the claim.

The Deacon is changing his centre field player so often these days that it is hard keeping track of him. Jimmy Barrett got a chance yesterday. The first time up he got in bad for two strikes, but waited and walked.

George Winter didn't get a chance to bat, although he pitched three innings. When his turn came in the last half of the third Cravath batted for him and lined out a single to right.

Dutch Schaefer tried to work the moth-eaten hidden-ball trick with the bases full in the third, but Thoney tipped his fellow players off, but a moment later the Tigers tried the same trick on McConnell and got away with it. "What's the matter, Cy," yelled the crowd to the veteran, who was coaching at third and who failed to follow the ball. The veteran had to blush.

The Detroits certainly had their batting clothes on. Winter and Burchell looked alike to them. And they never let up. The fact that there were two out made no difference.

ROGERS DEFEATS FAUST.

In a mixed style wrestling bout at the Columbia last evening Yankee Rogers succeeded in getting a decision over August Faust, although it looked dubious for Rogers at several stages of the struggle. Faust won the greco-roman bout in good style, but in the catch-as-catch-can set-to the lanky New Englander was easily the master. The last bout was won by a toe-hold in which Faust was the victim. A lively finish in which both men mixed it up furnished excitement for the crowd.

HARVARD FOUR FOR HENLEY.

Harvard will enter a coxless four-oar crew in the American Henley regatta at Philadelphia May 23. Yesterday the second varsity eight was broken up and the four appeared on the river for the first time and was stroked by E. Cutler, who has been moved up from bow.

LACROSSE IN STADIUM.

The Harvard lacrosse team will play Cornell in the first home intercollegiate game in the stadium at 4 to-morrow afternoon. The contest promises to be interesting.

Young, p.	Hitt, p.

CINCINNATI, May 14.—With the series now standing two to one in favor of the Reds, the Doves will try hard to even matters by taking to-day's game, which winds up the series.

Irving Young and Roy Hitt will probably be the opposing pitchers and if they are in form, the contest should prove exciting.

The Bostons barely escaped a shutout yesterday, 6 to 1.

Flaherty was in the box and opposed to him was Weimer, the southpaw star of the Reds. Weimer, however, had all the better of Flaherty and he held his opponent batsmen strong, while Flaherty was hit freely. Our men were practically helpless before Weimer's delivery. Two of their four hits came in the fifth, the only inning in which they had anything that even looked like fair prospects.

BILLY O'NEIL HAS A LIKELY RACE STABLE

Trainer Billy O'Neil has at the Lexington, Mass., half-mile track a string of twelve horses, some he thinks will be good enough to take to the races later in the season.

Among the aged performers that act like the candy are Watoga, 2:21¾, by Bingen, out of Mrs. Jack, 2:24¼; the black pacer, The Instructor, that has been thought good enough to tackle Grand Circuit timber in the past couple of seasons; Joe Onward, by Norval, that has trotted a mile in 2:16½, the last half in 1:04; Angelina Wilkes, 2:21¼, a pacing mare that can step fast, and the following youngsters and green ones:

Black colt by Bingen, dam Kitty Stanford, 2:19¼; bay colt (2) by Allewood, dam Violet, by The King; yearling colt by Fuzzy, 2:13¼, dam Bellie Brandon, a trotter owned by Sam Hastings; four-year-old pacing colt by Rubenstein, 2:05, dam The Nun, 2:24, owned by J. W. Dory; three-year-old trotting colt by Electmont; gray gelding, four years old, owned by C. B. Caton; two-year-old colt by Allewood, a trotter, owned by Richard Tower, and a four-year-old trotting colt by The Dreamer, dam Josie J., 2:12¾.

LYNN LOSES PROTEST.

The officials of the New England League refuse to consider the protest of Lynn in the game with Brockton at Lynn May 11 in an eleven inning contest when the umpire ruled in favor of Brockton.

FUTURITY COLT DOUGLAS SICK IN KENTUCKY

Douglas (3), 2:12¼, winner of the Hartford $10,000 Futurity last year, and owned by David Hyams of Boston, has been seriously sick in Lexington, Ky., where he is in the stud this year, but a telephone from his owner to-day states that the son of Bingen is now out of danger and the vet attending him predicts he will be all right in a few days.

Mr. Hyams says that Douglas is making a fine season in Kentucky, his book being now within four mares of full, and among his patrons has been the dam of the futurity colt Governor Francis, 2:11½, and Dolly Bidwell, 2:08½.

Next year Douglas will be taken from the stud for a full season on the turf, he going again into the stable of Lon McDonald, who will enter him in all the early-closing stakes down the Grand Circuit to which he is eligible. This must mean that McDonald believes that the gray stallion is a coming 2:05 or 2:06 trotter.

ADMIRERS OF BEAUMONT RALLY STRONG WITH VOTES

"Ginger" Beaumont ran ahead of the ticket in the last counting over his opponents in the BOSTON AMERICAN baseball contest for the most popular professional and amateur player, he receiving 2,636 votes, which was more than credited to any of the players. This effort of his friends landed him ahead of McConnell in the standing and only a couple of thousand votes back of Bowerman.

A new name in the professional ranks is Lord of the Red Sox. He has a number of times come very close to the required number for entry in the printed list, but his friends yesterday rallied to his support strong enough to finally bring him over the desired line.

For the amateurs Cardio got 150 votes, making him only thirty-two coupons from Broders, the leader. Curran jumped a lot closer to the leaders, while Finley gets into dangerous quarters for the four players in front of him.

Eleven of the amateurs have passed the thousand mark, and the race between the leaders is proving very interesting. Some of the American Express Company employes are putting in hard work for Curran. It is a question how many votes they have stored away for delivery in the future.

In a letter from a genuine fan he makes an appeal for those casting votes for professional players and leaving the amateur space on the coupons vacant, to fill in the space for the Messenger Boys' candidate, Cardio, saying that the little chaps should be encouraged in winning the contest. The standing of the players to date follows:

An Old Roman Senator

Once jumped up in his seat (it wasn't a baseball park, I am told it was in the Senate) and shouted, "At last! At last!" until he fell down and died. His last words were, "Oh, I'm happy." Some pet measure he had been advocating for years had finally become law. As I write I see the first copy of the Baseball Magazine before me and, like the old Roman, I keep

Crying "At Last! At Last!"

But to the best of my knowledge, I have not died—as yet, "But I'm so happy." The first thing I noticed was a beautiful cover, and on the inside, Oh, my! I haven't got time or space to tell you what I found. Sufficient to say, that it contains the best baseball stories I have ever read. It is something that has been needed for years and truly fills a long felt want. Almost every other sport has a publication, usually a high class one, too, and why shouldn't the greatest game in the world have one also? I, for one, will be one of your most ardent rooters and anything I can do, command me.

ARONSON GOT ONLY HIT.

Amherst shut out Harvard in a slow, uninteresting baseball game on Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon by the score of 3 to 0. Brick, the visiting twirler, had a spitball that he delivered very slowly and fooled the Harvard nine completely. Aronson, who played his first game since his injury at Annapolis, got the only hit made by the Crimson players.

GANS BIG FAVORITE OVER BOER

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Boer Rudifer Unholz and Joe Gans meet to-night in a twenty-round championship contest in the Coliseum Pavilion. Jack Welch will referee.

What is greatly in the Boer's favor is his peculiar build. He is a hard man to hit. Being so short and stocky, he is able to evade many jabs and uppercuts that a scientific boxer would not be able to block or dodge. He is built on the same lines as Joe Walcott, who was a terror to all classes of fighters, from welters up to heavyweights. The Barbadoes demon has an abnormally long reach and has a well muscled arm. That was his chief stock in trade and this is just what Unholz has. The Boer's reach is four inches longer than his height and when he swings his arm around it reminds one of a huge windmill in motion. He is so well muscled that he apparently could stop a cannon ball without showing any ill effects of the collision.

Like Walcott, the Boer has met and defeated heavyweights, middleweights, welterweights and lightweights. All kinds and classes of scrappers have faced him and he claims that none of them has ever feazed him with a wallop. Of course the men that he fought in other sections of the country are for the most part unknown on this coast, but what he did in Los Angeles is enough to recommend him to the Bay City fight fans.

Any fighter who can floor Battling Nelson and beat him to a pulp in ten rounds can fight some, while his trimming of Memsic in ten rounds, who gave Gans a hard time of it for twenty rounds, shows that he knows some of the fine points of the game, as well as being able to assimilate punishment and swing haymakers.

Joe Gans says that Unholz has not a chance to beat him, and that a bet on him (Gans) is a safe one at any price.

The betting on the contest is at 10 to 3, with Gans on the long end.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Fire Losses on Pianos

A slight blistering of the cases by the heat is quickly remedied—a thorough scraping and rubbing down and revarnishing in our repair dept. makes the piano as good as new—a thorough inspection of all the parts, and then our expert tuner completes the job—then the beautiful piano is sent to our sacrifice floor and the economical buyer gets a fine instrument for almost nothing. All makes have been coming in—the best pianos in the world—and are sacrificed at once.

"Should We Make New Friends?" —Surely

Let Us Also Become Better Acquainted Close at Home. That Is the Really Important Thing

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

One of our readers is a most attractive, polite, persistent reader and contributor. He sends an average of twenty or thirty newspaper clippings a day, with a request for editorial comment. Sometimes he sends a great many more.

To-day we select from his collection this clipping, with a quotation from the celebrated talker, Johnson:

> "If a man does not make new acquaintances as he advances through life he will soon find himself alone. A man should keep his friendship in constant repair."

The idea which Johnson suggests is that a man travelling through life must make new friends to take the place of those that drop out. That is true to a limited extent. But the advice is not important, for the man CAPABLE of attracting friends ATTRACTS them, and makes them with, or without, advice.

Johnson's other statement, "A man should keep his friendship in constant repair," is more important.

It is a good thing to have a few real friends, to keep their friendship "in repair," and to cut off a good many of the little foolish so-called friendships that really mean nothing except waste of time.

Early, exuberant friendships are usually childish affairs, based upon love of noise and frolic. These wear out and drop away inevitably. You find few men of middle age—say from forty-five to seventy—that have MANY friends. But you can pity the man that has not ANY.

A kind nature makes numerous friendships and close companionships with many human beings less and less necessary as we travel toward old age. The old man, if a fully developed, mature man, does not need many friends. He does not need chatter to stimulate thought. He could not tolerate the close daily intimacy with many which makes up the charm of life in youth.

The old man gets along with less friendship, as he gets along with less sleep. Nature arranges it that way.

The important thing for a man to do is TO KNOW HIMSELF BETTER, TO KNOW HIS WIFE BETTER. In every human being there is not one but a thousand personalities locked up. If a man studies and knows himself, not egotistically, but truthfully and severely, and utilizes all the personality that is in him, instead of thinking in a rut, he can get along well with few outside friends.

And if he studies his wife as he should do he realizes how many personalities there are in HER, how much there is of mental companionship, deep mental interest, and perhaps unsuspected charm.

The wise and fortunate man finds in his life with one good woman an excellent substitute for the many foolish, half sincere friends.

It takes one MAN and one WOMAN combined to make A REALLY COMPLETE HUMAN BEING.

If a man and a woman live together in perfect accord, perfect friendship and sympathy, growing together, helping each other, studying each other, they will find that they can get on well, form a complete society of their own, without much help from the outside.

Friendly discussion with others is always beneficial, for discussion awakes the mind and evokes ideas. But the older a man gets and the more he thinks, the more he realises how little of our ordinary talk and discussion is worth while. He realizes the justice of Schopenhauer's caustic comments on the fifty savages crowded into one small room "because they cannot get enough of one another's snub-nosed company."

A man who gets old, who lives and thinks, begins to stand apart like the tree in the middle of a field. If he have one faithful tree growing beside him, fighting the tempest, the drought and the frost with him, that is company enough.

If a man lacks that company, the mental sympathy, encouragement and compensatory stimulant of a woman whose confidence and affection he has deserved he will find that all the other friends, real or pretended, and all the success, artificial or otherwise, will not make up for that lack.

An Address to the President

(A Synopsis of the Remarks of the National Prosperity Association.)

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

GREAT SIR—We confess that it helps us a lot
When, with never a second's cessation,
You land on our plexuses swat after swat
With the spear that has got no relation;
As to belting us over the head with your stick—
That is fine for us all, we admit it;
We are awfully charmed with that chastening trick,
Dee-lighted, in fact—but please quit it!

IF you hadn't sic'd all of your law-making crew
Upon us, with righteous severity,
There is really no telling just what we should do
To revive our poor, knocked-out prosperity.
It aids us so much when you stave in our slats
With your messages; no one can doubt it,
But we'd add just one word to this statement and that's
That perhaps we might bear up without it.

SO, therefore, Great Sir, while we know it is best
That we should thus be walloped and welted,
And jolted and pummelled and biffed in the chest
And bludgeoned and bullied and belted,
While we know that to make all our lives one grand song
Is the aim of your worthy existence,
We really should like, sir, to worry along
Without quite so much—er—assistance.

HOME, TO-DAY.

MEIN LIEBER LOOEY—Ve haf receifed your letter from Glens Falls und ve vas glat dot your healt' remains sociable.

Ve vas all vell at home mit der eggsception dot your Aunt Louisa Diffenbauer is now py our house to make a short wisit vich vill last as long as our patience can stood der strain.

You know, Looey, ve luff to haf all our relations come py our house und wisit mit us so long vot dey conduction demselfs in a manner vich is pleasing to der intelleck, but Aunt Louisa is der limick—der far-off und much removed limick.

Here is a voman, Looey, vich comes to our house as a guest, und der fairst morning she is mit us she arises herself at sefen t'irty, goes direct py der kitchen und begins to scold der cook because she is peeling der potatoes too far from der surface.

"Vot is it your pitzness vare I unchacket a potato?" responded der cook, mit indicknation.

"It is my pitzness," snapped Aunt Louisa, "because ofer in my belofed home in New Chersey I belong to der Society for der Prewention of Vastefulness

"Und besides your kitchen is untidy und you should get your broom und sveep it," vent on Aunt Louisa.

Den der cook got der broom und ven your mother came running in answer to Aunt Louisa's shrieks, she found her under der kitchen table mit nearly two hundred pounds of imported Irish anger sitting on her und poking her in der short ribs mit der broom hundle.

Den der cook vent und got her hat und left, after it had taken your mother two veeks und nine intelligence offices to find her.

So soon vot your Aunt Louisa recofered her breathing material she vent ouid to der barn und began to scold der coachman because he gafe der olt brown mare too much oats.

"Vy is it your pitzness vot I feed der horses?" inkvired der coachman, politefully, but mit der rising inflections on der last syllabus.

"It is my pitzness," set your Aunt Louisa, "because ofer in my belofed home in New Chersey I am der secretary of der Society for der Prewention of Over-fededness in Horses, und you gafe dot horse eighteen more oats den it is necessary. Do you know der chemical arrangement of a oat? Do you know dot vun oat alone contains four per cent. of hydrogen under der oxalic qualities vich it derives darefrom equal nine stalks of Timothy hay, because——"

But der coachman py dis time vas ouid der back door of der barn und running like a Chack-rabbit in der direction of Hartford, Ct.

I am writing dese few lines ouid in der voodshed mit my trusty rifle py my side, und if I hear der echoes of dot voman's feets on der pat'vay I am prepared for bitter deeds. Yours mit luff,

Pauperism of the Soul

Millions Could Not Enrich One That Hates Humanity

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

THE following letter, or extracts from an epistle of some sixteen pages, has been received by me, signed by a political exile and refugee from his own land and an Anarchist, who is, of course, a wholly different being from the Socialist, the first aiming to destroy, the second to create; the first to throw bombs, the second to scatter balm.

My correspondent says:

> I am perishing—spiritually, I mean—as every one of us from Europe is bound to be in this country if he be of a Sienkiewicz spiritual calibre or even of my own. I can truly repeat with that Zola's Zantor: "In this country I find myself in a world of moral dwarfs, where all are small and contemptible." And if I were to tell how mean, how small, how contemptible—even those of the American people in such prominent stations which, according to the noblesse oblige, ought to have made them some more high-souled—I have found them to be, nobody would believe me. I cannot find within myself the needed strength to lift my spirit. Indeed the strengthening from outside, or my spiritual self will go slowly to pieces.

It is not to be wondered that a man who fills his soul so full of hatred, bitterness and anger should find himself in need of something from the "outside" to sustain him.

Strength From Within

BUT all strength which sustains and uplifts must come from within. We must dig into the centre of Universal Being and find the God of Love before we can be satisfied.

This man has built an adamantine wall all about that centre and shut himself from light, love, strength, hope, success and usefulness, and now he cries aloud for some one to come over the wall from the outside and bring all these blessings to him. It cannot be done. He tells me he has spent years in hatred of his enemies and in plotting revenge upon them.

He glories in the thought that he has succeeded—and now he tries for new strength to continue his labor of hate. He wants me to help him to produce an anarchistic play, which he believes will bring him the money needed to nourish his body and brain so he can go on revenging himself with the vigor which his heart of hate requires.

Pauper in His Soul

POOR man! Though a million of dollars were bestowed upon him he would yet be a pauper and a weakling. Food, clothes and fire can do nothing for a soul so filled with gall. Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven—i. e., the love of humanity, which is but the reflection of God.

Until we learn to "love God with all our hearts and our neighbor as ourself" we can never hope for permanent progress in any direction or for lasting happiness, health or peace.

The moment we go about any work of reform with the dominant thought of revenging ourselves rather than helping ourselves and others, we sound the note of defeat. Let time and law take care of vengeance.

God is reported to have said, "Vengeance is mine," but I do not believe such a feeling could emanate from the soul of Universal Love. God simply established the laws of cause and effect, and whoever sows the wind reaps the whirlwind.

Hate Always Wrong

WE, His creatures, are to do His bidding—to love one another, to help one another, to avoid all evil thinking, speaking and doing, and to be charitable, just and considerate in all our relations with humanity.

It is right to take a strong, bold stand against injustice, greed and corruption wherever we see it, but it is wrong to fill our souls full of hate for wrongdoers and to endeavor to constitute ourselves a personified sword of vengeance, rather than a shining beacon of truth and love.

America has glaring faults; but, having been in Europe since the receipt of my Anarchist correspondent's letter, I feel less in sympathy with his violent denunciations of our land and people.

I believe the hope of higher humanity lies with us, for we are the least degenerate of all the nations, the quickest witted, the most original and the most ambitious, and we fear neither priest nor king.

The great and beneficent Socialism of the world shall yet emanate from America.
